THE CLASS OF 1978
OF STONEHAM HIGH SCHOOL,
Stoneham, Massachusetts
presents

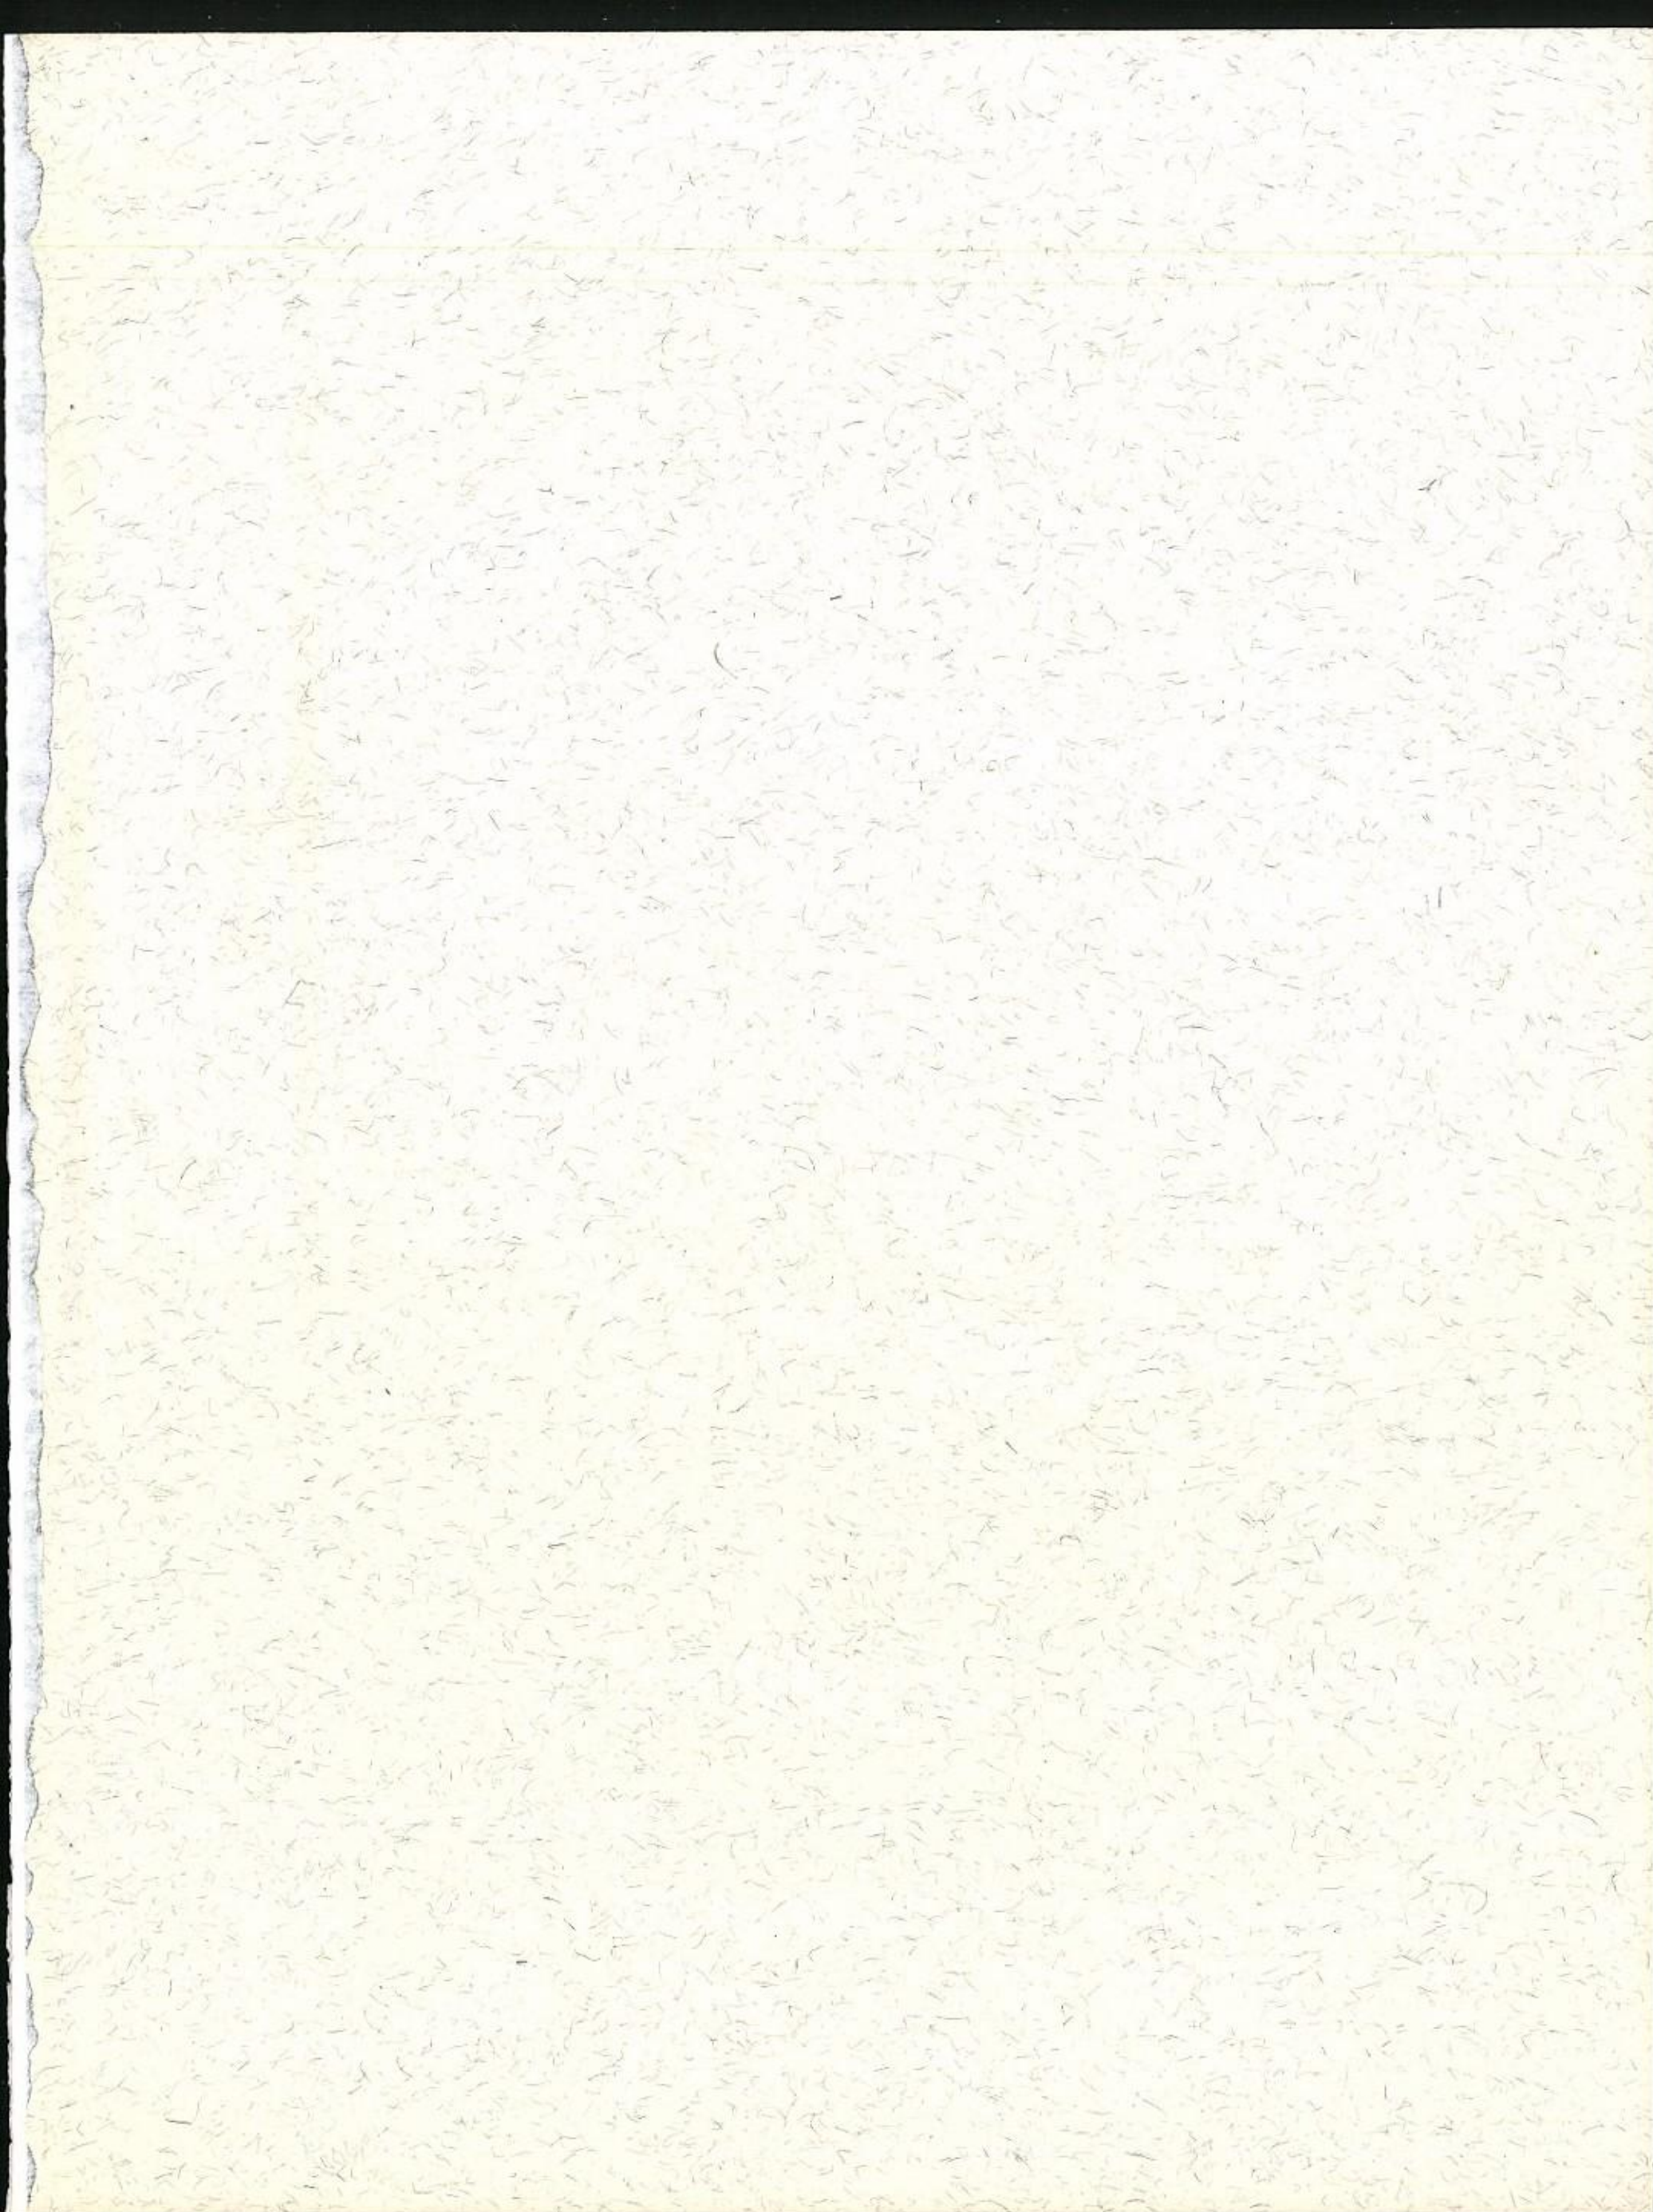

Mr. Margouta -

I never enjoyed a class as much as yours. You're a great man with the warmth and personality that makes anyone feel like your friend. You're the best! You've been a real friend through high school and I thank you very much. I hope I see you over the years to come. Stay as happy as you are!

CIRCUS MAXIMUS

An enormous stadium which could hold approximately 485,000 spectators, used by the Romans for horse races and chariot races on which the people bet large sums of money. Strong rivalries between groups of riders and heavy betting on the races often led to massive riots and much unrest which had to be quieted by the local armies. Other amusements such as feasts, reviews and assaults of arms and gladiatorial fights with wild beasts entertained and tantalized the Roman masses.

THE MAKING OF A YEARBOOK

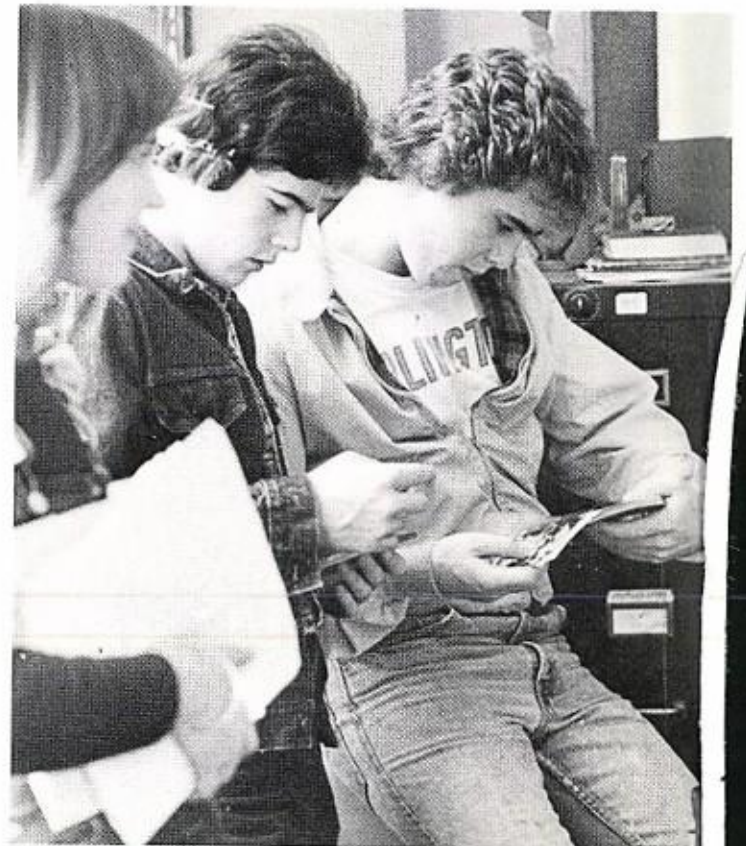

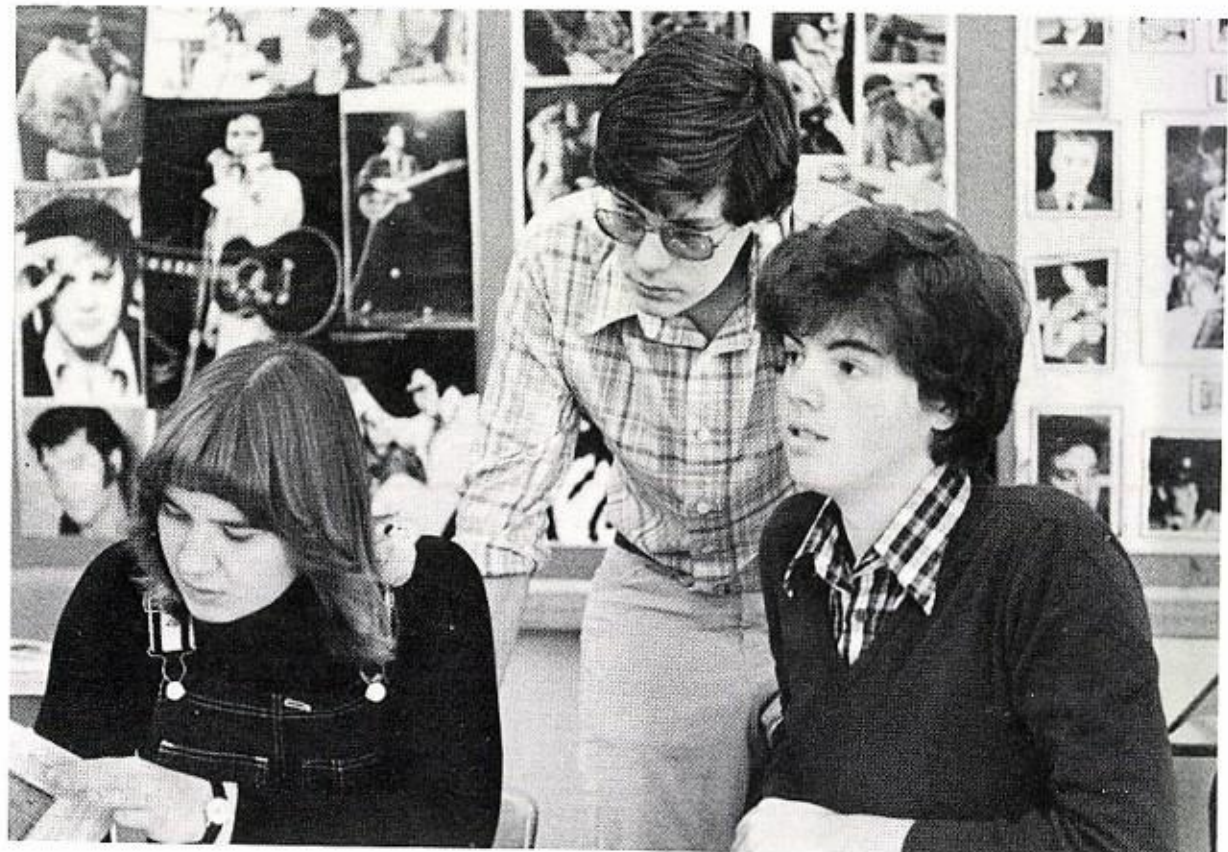

A yearbook is a permanent record of the collective life of a Senior class and one year in the life of a school. Each year, each book, presents new challenges and new problems with new people responding with new ideas.

The history of the 1978 yearbook began with the selection by popular vote of the two editors-in-chief. For the first time students were allowed to nominate and then select the individuals who would fill these important positions. A significant turn in the direction of the book took place shortly after the election when the process of theme and title selection was started. There were the usual suggestions: "The Way We Were." But a majority of the staff was attracted to an unusual possibility — Circus Maximus — the name given to one of the centers of community activity and entertainment in Rome during its golden age. The single suggestion was presented to the class on a ballot and a majority voted for it, although there was a strong antagonism to the title among some of the Seniors. In fact one student cited the choice as "pet peeve."

The 1977 yearbook VISIONS had been sent to the Columbia University Scholastic Press Association for evaluation, a process which resulted in suggestions for improving future books. The proposed changes were presented to the class in a referendum and most of them were rejected with a strong and, in some cases, highly emotional feeling expressed for retaining the traditional approach, highlighting such elements as senior comments and senior favorites. And so the staff of the 1978 yearbook is faced with a difficult challenge — the successful treatment of an unusual theme, while honoring the majority desire for traditional elements, and recognizing the suggestions for creating a more meaningful and complete record of the life of a class. The pages that lie ahead will show how well this challenge has been met.

THE MAKING OF A VISIT

Stoneman High was privileged by the recent visitations of some classic Roman characters. The visitors were greeted by all of Stoneham High with open arms. The Romans thrilled the students with lectures on the philosophy of Ancient Rome and tidbits of information on a previous lifestyle. The Romans were in turn ecstatic with all they learned of Stoneham High and their scholars. These pious people stood before the school each day and worshipped their leader.

The Romans and students and teachers all became quite attached and when the time came for the Romans to depart, all from Stoneham High wept tears of sorrow. Students and teachers alike stood before the school and waved good-bye to the Romans and wished upon a wishing star that the Romans would return again someday.

THE ART OF LOVE

Take her to the Circus.
Opportunities abound.
You can use your racing license,
as the horses gallop round.
No need to correspond with her by nod
and furtive touch;
You can sit right down beside her — no one else will bother much —
And cuddle close; you have to,
if the lady likes or not,
For the seats are packed together,
it's a very crowded spot.

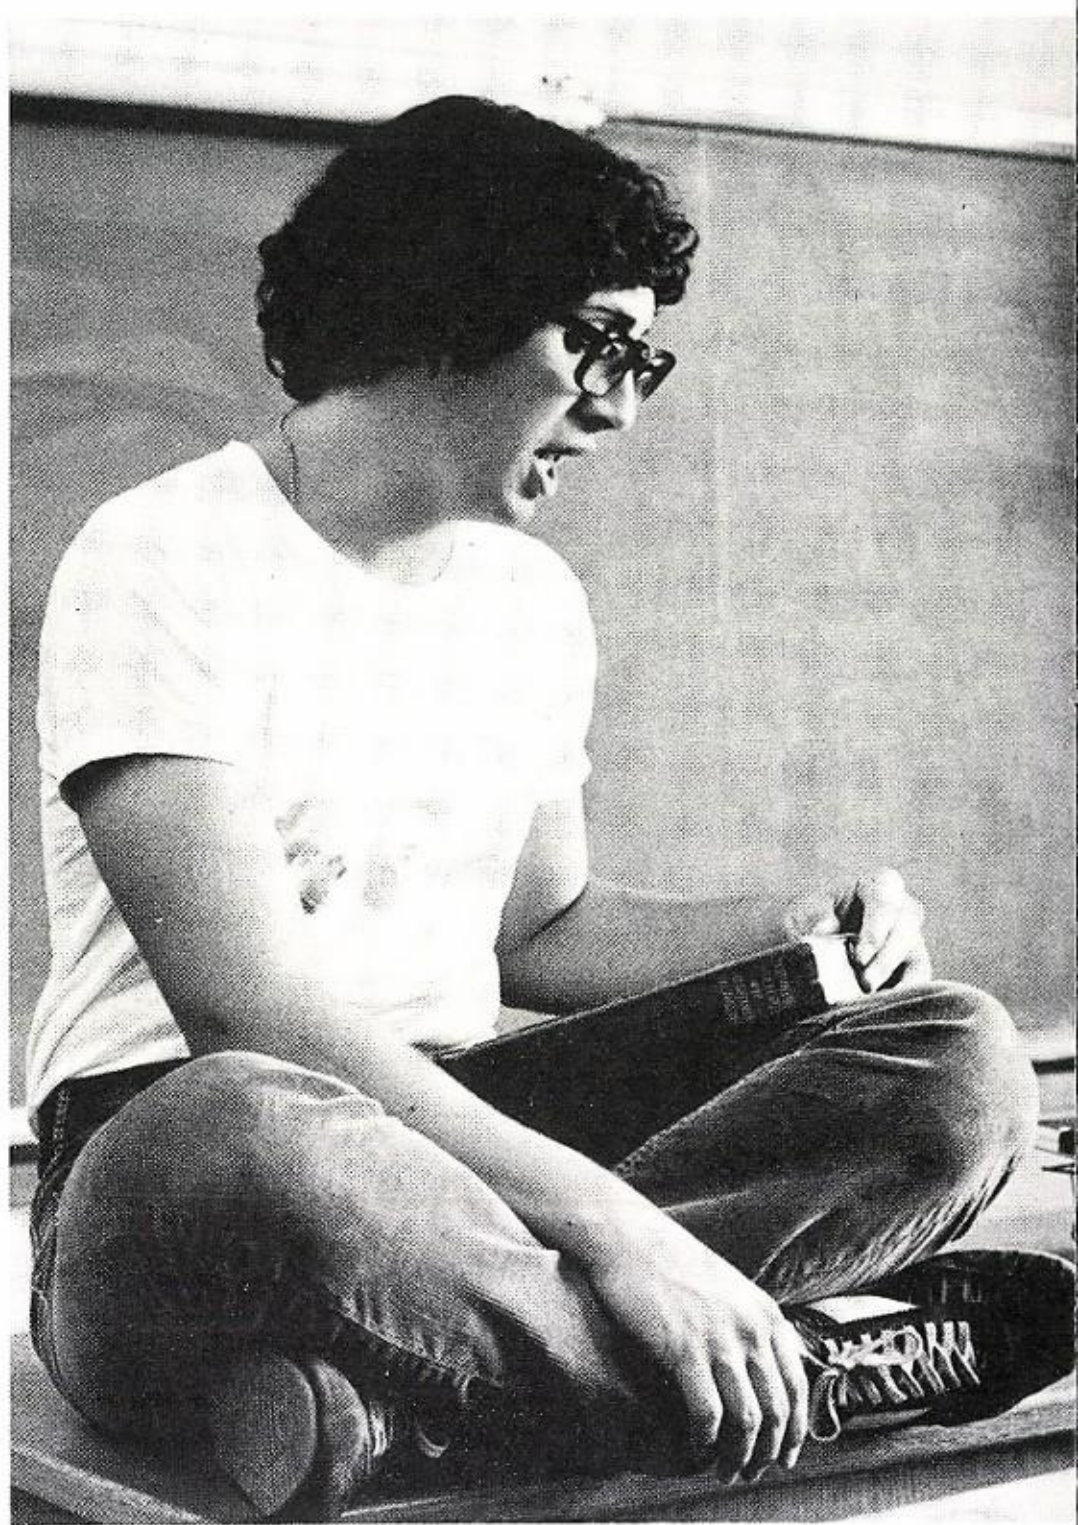

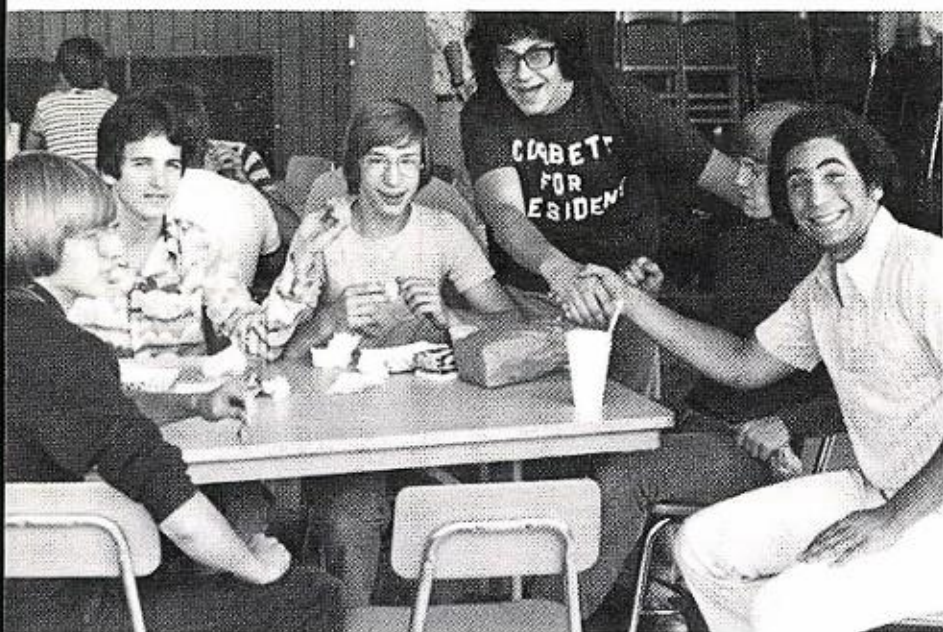

THE MAKING OF A PRESIDENT

When Bernard Corbett, comedian and hedonist personified, announced his intentions to run for the senior class presidency, the majority of his fellow classmates looked forward to an amusing, possibly hysterical, campaign climaxed with a Carsonian monologue instead of a serious speech. In essence, many of the voters didn't even consider him a serious candidate and much of the opposition didn't consider him at all.

Other presidential candidates looked back to the Freshman elections when Bernie also ran for office and was defeated. The Freshman election is usually a popularity contest and when a friendly candidate can't win under such circumstances, what chance does he have when the voters are looking for a serious, motivated, responsible man in office?

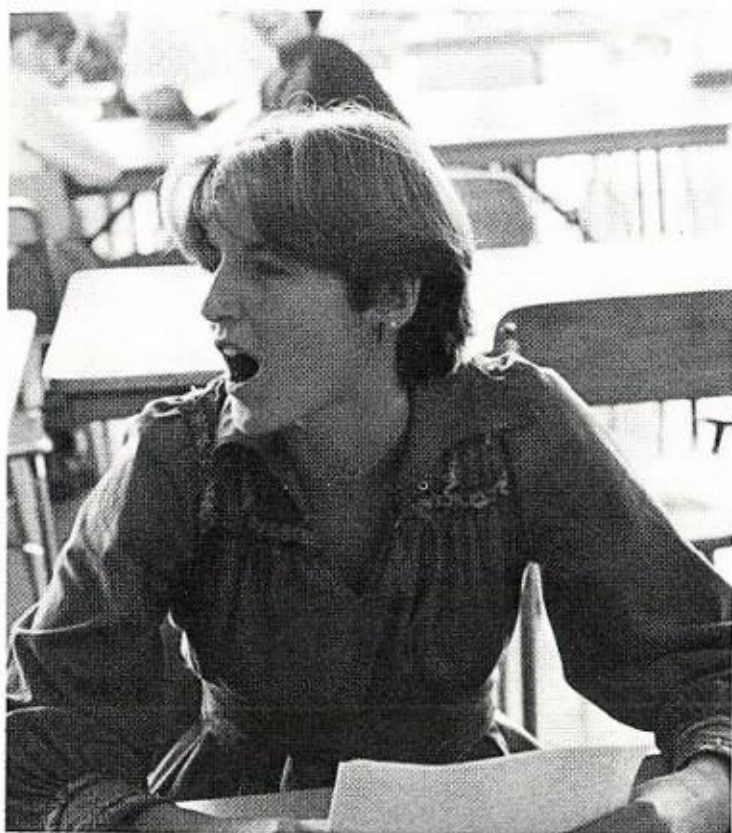

Bernie's chances were, in fact, infinitesimal until he discarded his old jokes and began carefully cultivating a fresh image. He accomplished this new miraculous transition with such style and political poise that he completely outdistanced his rivals.

Now halfway through the year, Bernie has, for the most part, successfully maintained his new image except for sporadic bursts of vintage Corbett humor. And who would criticize him if the bursts of buffoonery occurred more often?

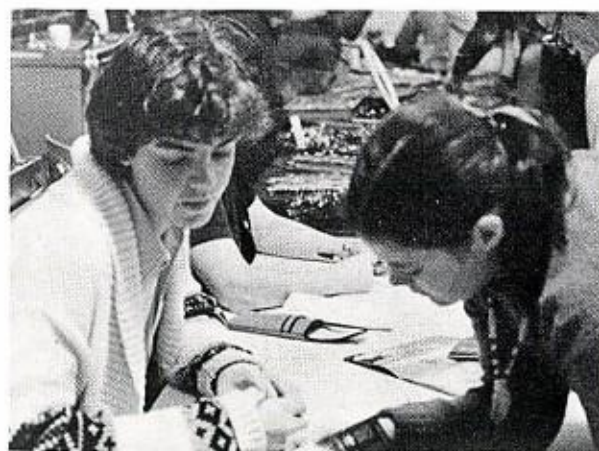

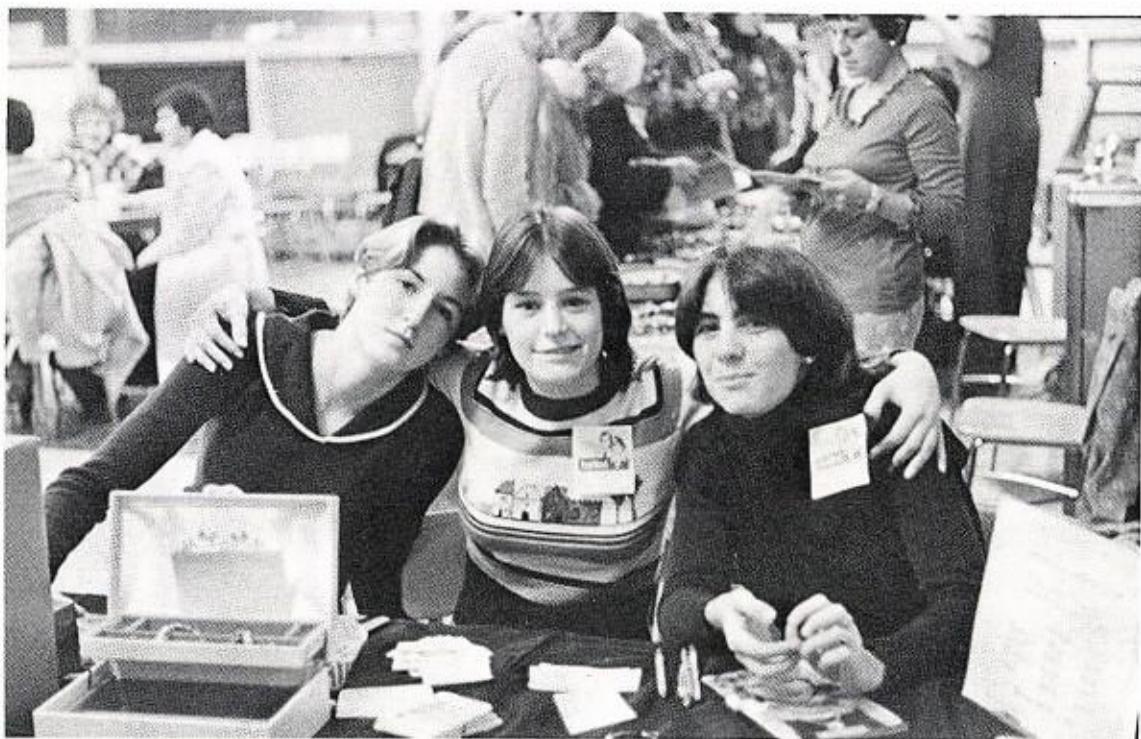

THE MAKING OF A YEAR

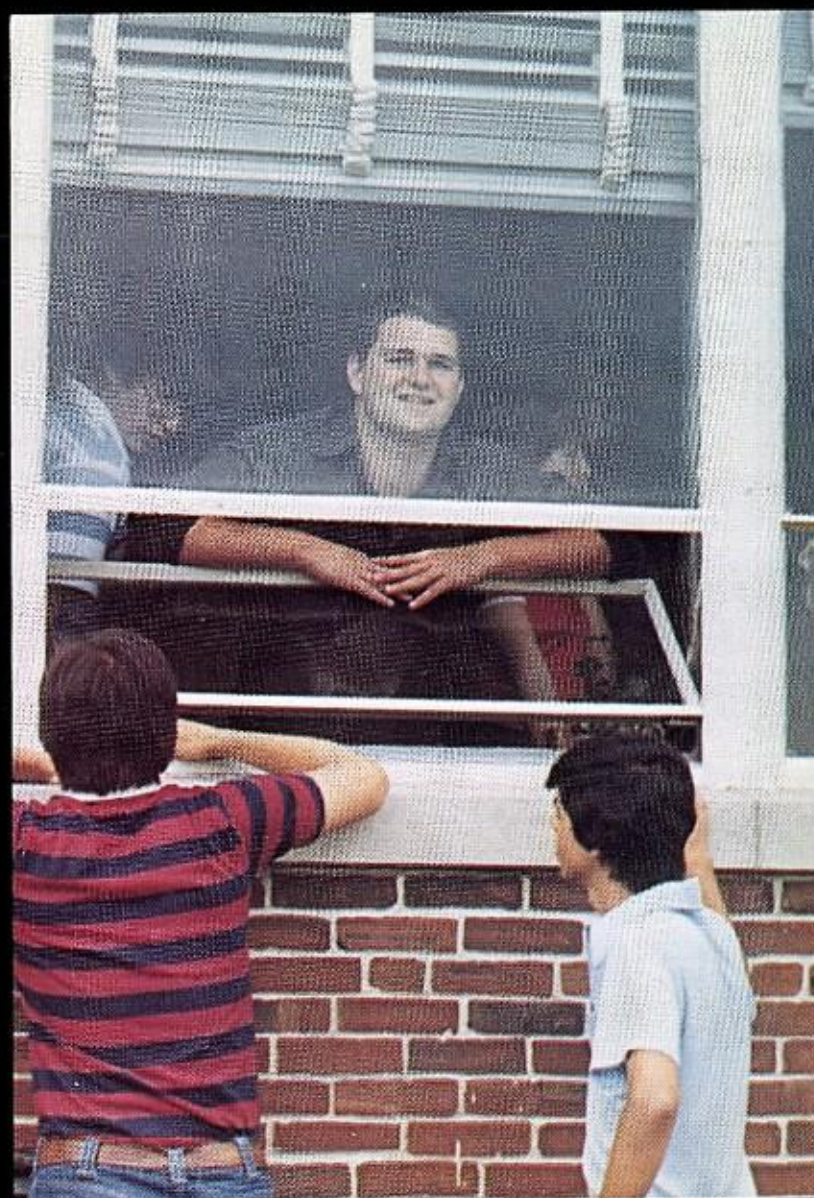

The class of '78 has been involved in a difficult struggle to raise sufficient funds in order to have a successful year. Senior classes of the recent past had a relatively easy time at generating revenue because of the presence of a snack bar which seniors were able to operate for their own benefit. But the current senior class was faced with the fact that there would be no snack bar from the very outset of the school year because of a state law requiring a breakfast program.

Now forced to explore other avenues to resolve the seniors financial problem the senior class officers got the wheels in motion. First was the sale of novelty T-shirts which featured the names of all senior class members. This venture proved mixed at best. Next was the still continuing sale of candy by senior class members. So far this drive (along with a recent dance and Sarah Coventry jewelry show) has been most successful. The overall senior class effort remains far from over.

Future plans include aluminum can recycling, car washes, concession sales at athletic events, and a carnation day designed to bring student's true feelings for each other out in the open. So as of now, whether the year will be made remains to be seen. Here's hoping that through continued hard work the seniors will succeed in the end.

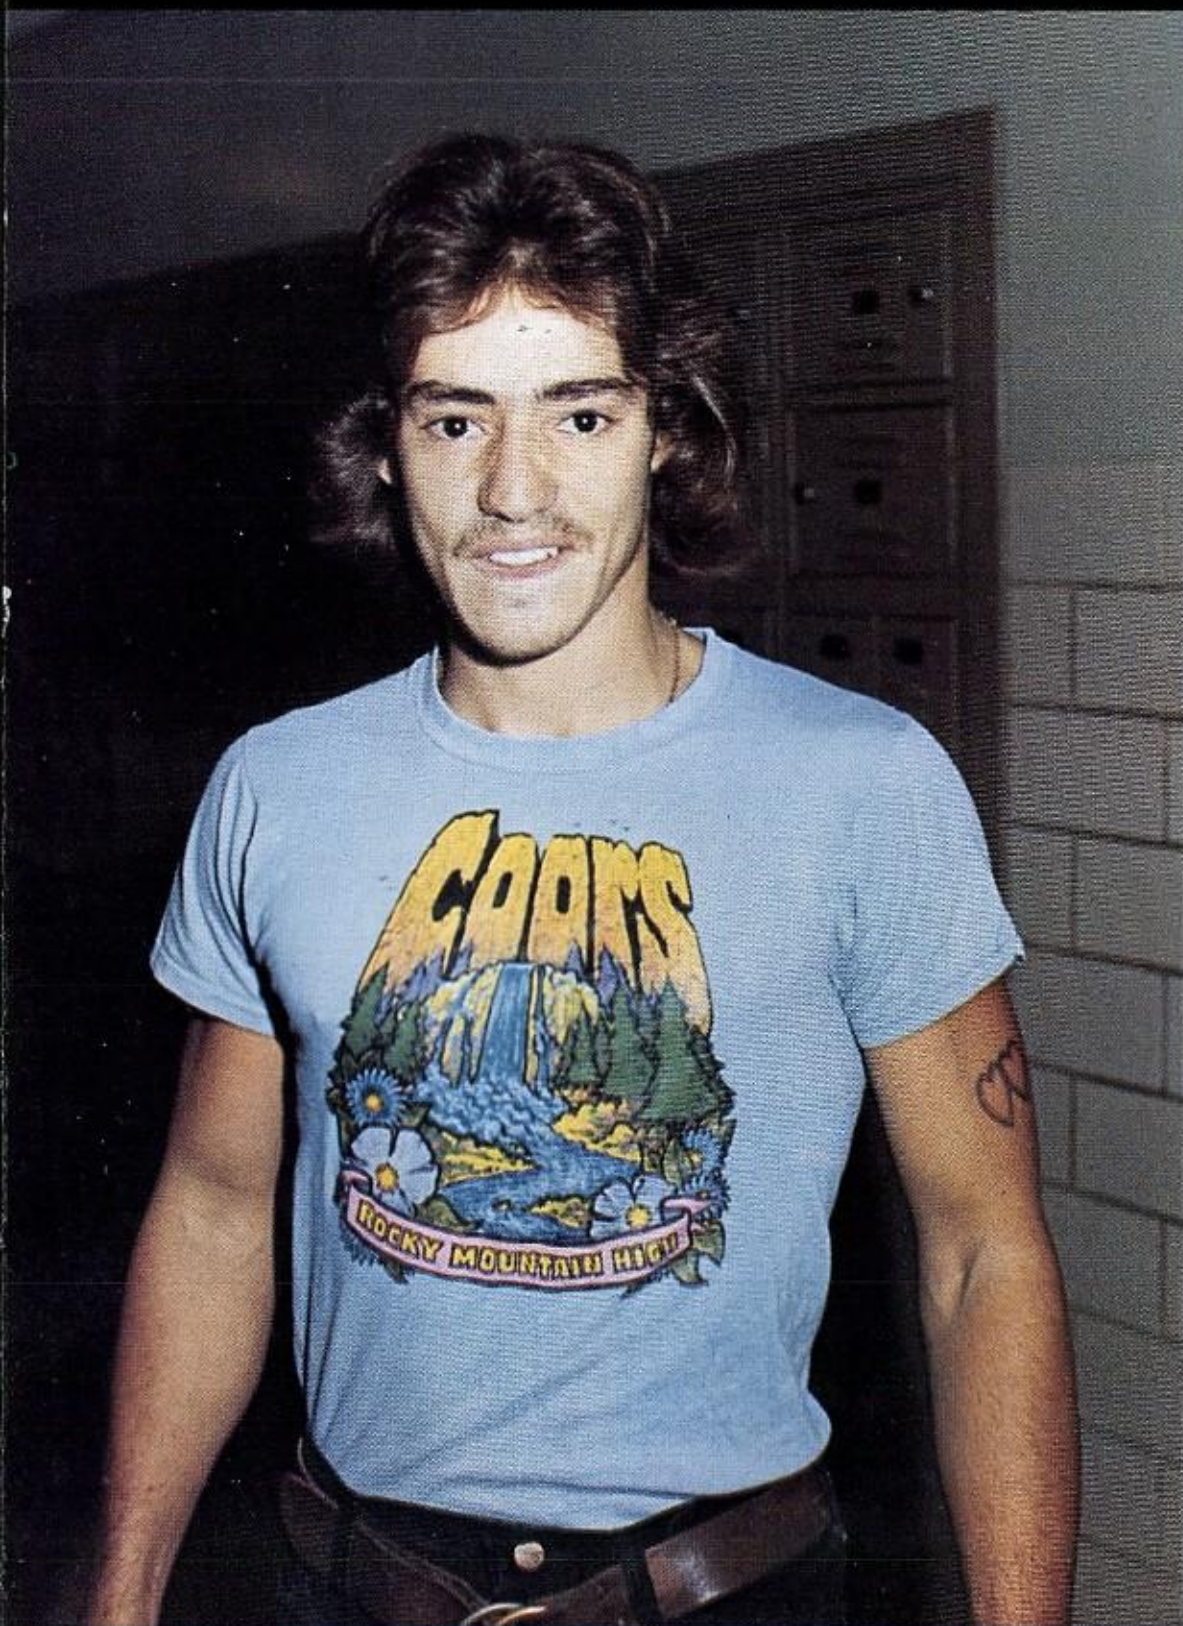

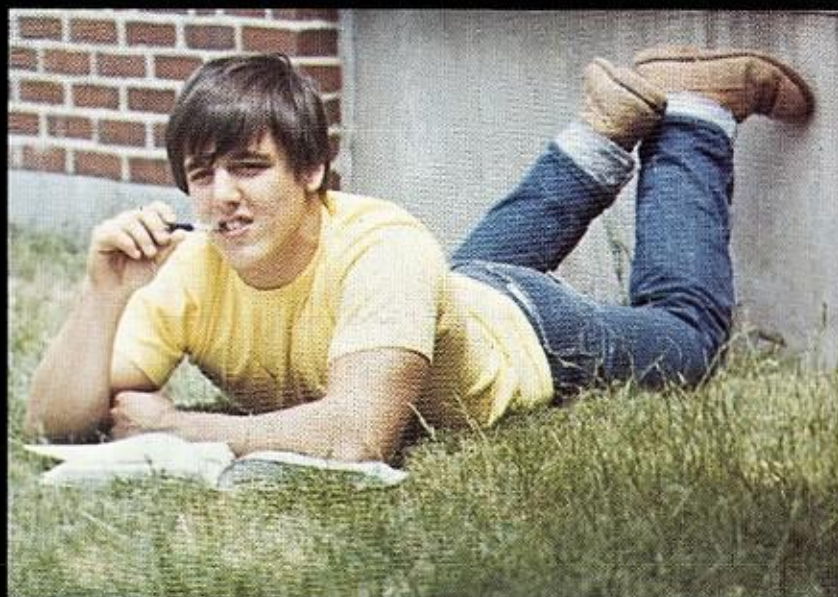

As Mr. Nuss nonchalantly strolls through the courtyard, he is surrounded by the circus atmosphere. To his right he is confronted by Glenn Farrell savoring his frosty frappe while below Dana Beane converses with a few of his many friends. Meanwhile Lorene St. Amand shouts to the troops that she successfully broke the frappe guzzling contest with a time of 29 seconds. While out grovelling on the dusty diamond, our small but versatile president displays his athletic ability.

The arms of victory are raised by Judy Marshall as she successfully mounts the pyramid. Tony Auterio proudly advertises his favorite beverage, but Dennis Bain is too busy studying to notice. The familiar question is still being asked about the twins: "Who's on top, Linda or Laura?"

THE MAKING OF A SEASON I

It should have been apparent to everyone from the very beginning. On a warm Indian summer Sunday in Wilmington a matter of inches forced a scoreless tie instead of victory. Seven tries inside the three and empty-handed. This opening game futility was a virtual microcosm of a season that was not to be.

After hard fought losses to two of the league's best squads (Watertown and Winchester) there followed a pair of uninspired rollovers to Burlington and Lexington. Two horrendous afternoons that made the seasons of seemingly inferior squads. These fiascos coupled with probably the seasons most frustrating afternoon (against Melrose) created a season that resembled a roller coaster ride from high optimism to utter disappointment. Why is the obvious question. Several reasons appear to stand out.

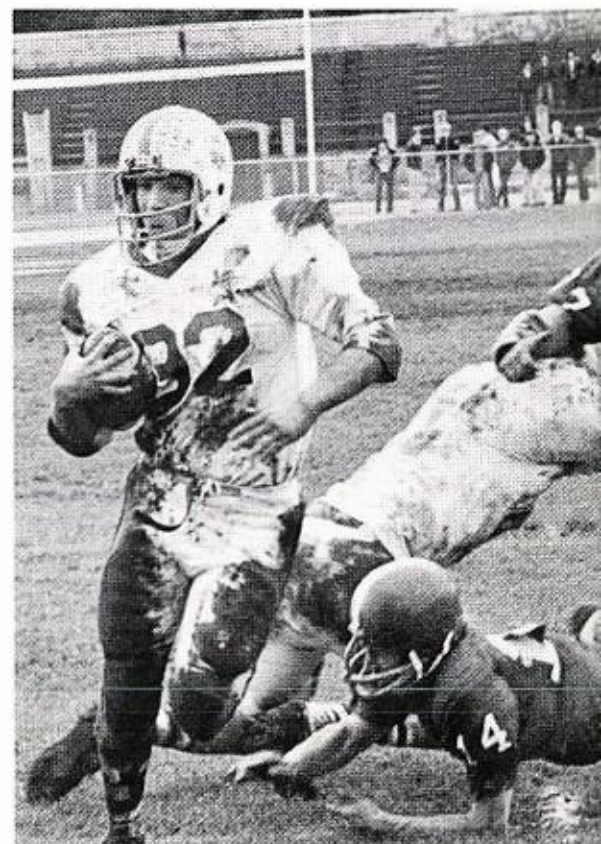

Maybe hopes were too high from the start. The league experts and opposing coaches mainly talked of Stoneham's exceptional size and stature as a dark horse, while placing them no higher than the third or fourth spot. The top spots were reserved mainly for Watertown, Winchester, and Melrose. For once the "experts" were fairly accurate but what might have been still troubles the minds of the Spartans.

The major problem all season seemed to be depth, several players went both ways which over 40 minutes becomes more difficult to do. The offense which was adequate at best totally collapsed to the point of complete ineptitude. Three shutouts and the production of only nine touchdowns during an eight game span are not what championships are made of. On the other hand the defense remained solid throughout most of the year. Their main problem as the season progressed was how to play at the same level of efficiency when forced to be on the field more and more as a result of an offense that was plagued by inconsistency.

Injuries provided the final crushing blow. Victor Pizzotti by general consensus the league's finest all around performer was lost for the season in the Winchester game. Unsurprisingly this game was the beginning of the end. Bill McLaughlin a solid two way starter and tri captain was also forced out of action for a time. A final crushing blow was the late season injury suffered by standout back Carmine Frongillo. Frongillo who was the offense during the team's early success faded out of the ball carrying picture somewhat as the season developed but still remained to provide 40 minutes of fine all around play from week to week.

All that's left now is the traditional date with Reading on Thanksgiving. There is no Super Bowl berth at stake but something more important: a matter of pride and respect for a team that received basically one kind of breaks — bad. Here's hoping the season's final 40 minutes will be fruitful and that some of that bitter taste that accompanies defeat will be washed away. It just may make a season that appeared to be broken.

THE MAKING OF A SEASON II

With the decline of one Spartan team came the emergence of another. As the much heralded football team continued to disappoint, the inconspicuous girls' volleyball team continued to impress as they played on, seemingly unbeatable.

No one knew what to expect from this first year varsity sport. For many years, an uncoached co-ed volleyball program has been run in the spring, but this was the only opportunity for players to gain experience. Call it beginners' luck or natural talent, but whatever it is, the Stoneham High volleyball team had it.

Coached by Glenda Layne, the hardworking squad earned an 8-1 record, yet was denied an invitation to the state tournament due to a shortage of games in their schedule. Had they played just one more match, the team would have been statebound.

The team efforts were greatly boosted by the efforts of Brazilian exchange students Marta Siquiera and Valeria Correl. Both girls had playing experience, adding a veteran's touch to a rookie squad. The girls' tremendous talent was exceeded only by their encouragement and enthusiasm for the rest of the team. Marta, along with Paula Doherty, co-captained the team.

Why did this young, inexperienced team fare so much better than Stoneham teams who worked together all summer? The difference is obvious — the volleyball team did not play in the Middlesex League.

The accomplishments of the 1977 volleyball team may have a greater bearing on the Stoneham sports program than was ever anticipated. Matching their record against that of most other Spartan teams may prove to the athletic director that Stoneham really could be "out of its league".

While basking in the courtyard sun, Michael O'Connell looks up and sees a human tower forming above him.

Dean Demarco and Richie Regan are busy printing up tickets for Saturday's game. The Monday after the victory Paul Uva glances at Karen MacEachern from afar.

Dot Shakalis, Pam Junker and Laura Raftell relax in the courtyard sun.

"By now Diomedes was very close. He was driving with the whip, swinging his arm right back for every lash, and making his horses leap high in the air as they sped on to the finish. Showers of dust fell on their driver all the time, and as the fast pair flew over the ground the chariot overlaid with gold and tin came spinning after them and scarcely left a tyre mark on the fine dust behind"

Homer, The Iliad

With respect to my teacher, Maximus, kindness, sympathy, and sincerity all contributed to give an impression of a rectitude that was innate rather than inculcated. Nobody was ever made by him to feel inferior, yet none could have presumed to challenge his preeminence. He was also the possessor of an agreeable sense of humor.

Electives Have Wide Appeal For Student Body

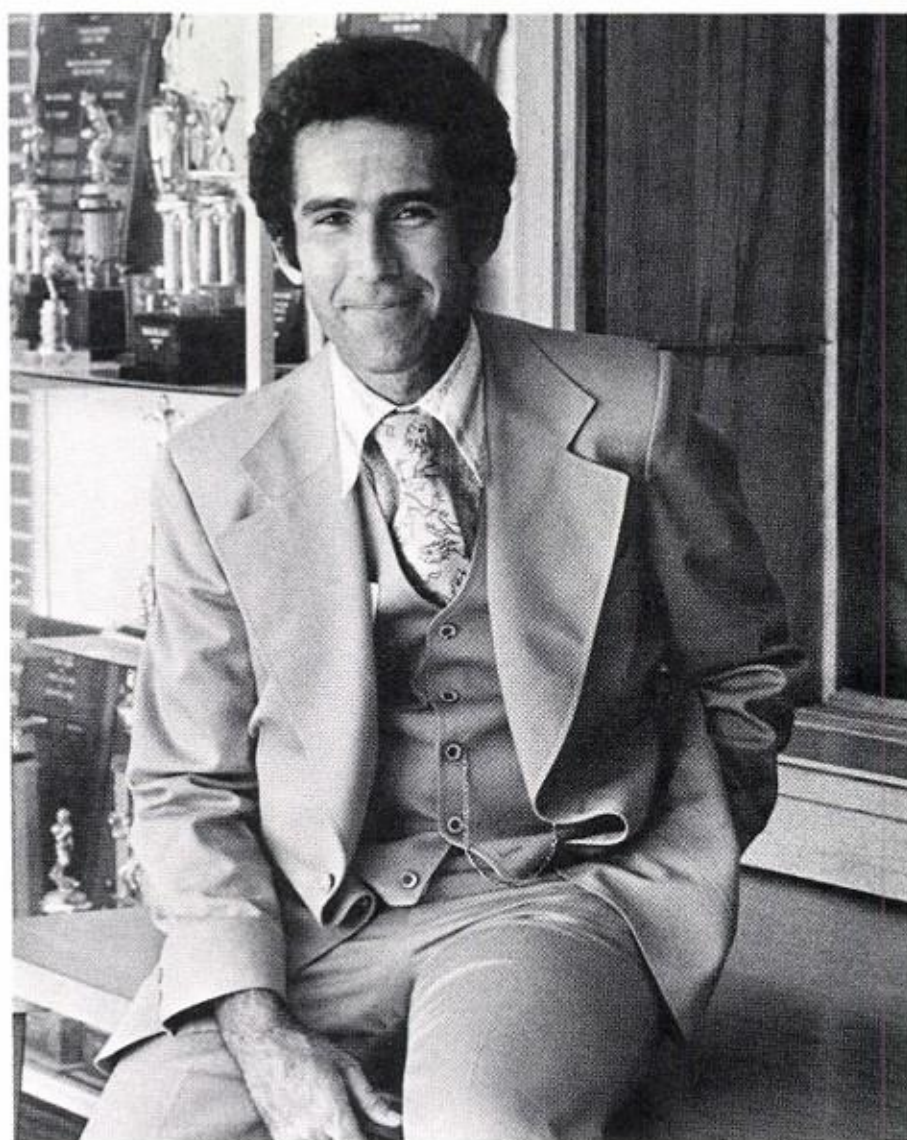

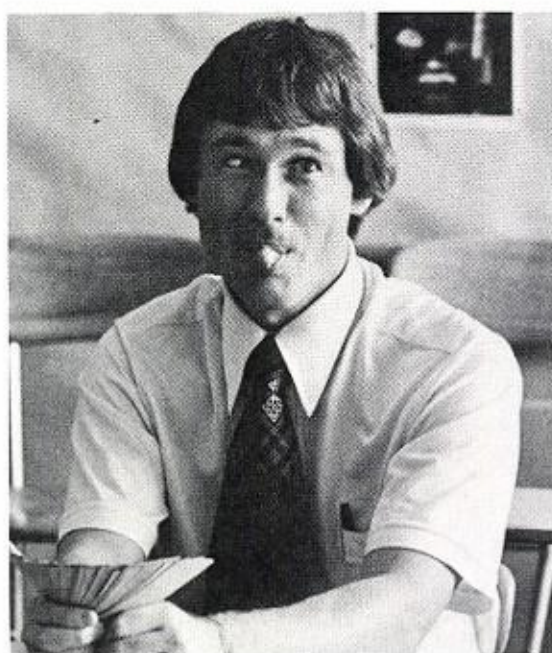

The high school English department offers a variety of electives ranging from Creative Writing to Literature and Psychology. As a result of these offerings, 110% of the student body is currently enrolled in English courses. Courses in Journalism, in Science Fiction and Mystery increase the scope of the curriculum while electives in Sports Literature and Film Media have proven popular to a wide range of student tastes. The English department strives to be relevant and contemporary, and seems to be succeeding judging from the popularity of its elective program.

The Social Studies Department offered a number of unique opportunities for students outside of the regular classroom activities. Programs such as Close Up, Political Discovery, Metropathways, Harvard Model UN all gave students opportunities to use Washington, D.C., and Boston as their classroom. The students' intern-program at the State House allowed students to spend a full semester working in the political environment. Such programs add much realism to the classroom theories, and help make learning more pragmatic.

Social Studies Expands Classroom To Bring Theory To Life

New Computer Expands the Activities of the Math Department

The Math department is, as usual, on the ball with the addition of not only a computer, but also an Introductory course to computers called BASIC. This is an interesting addition to the department's already extensive program where courses range from Algebra I to Calculus. They are also keeping up with the competition through the Math Team, a successful and increasingly popular organization already in its third competitive year.

Equality for All at the Stove and the Sink

Home Economics is a spot of happiness and warmth in an otherwise cold, dreary, existence for both girls and even some liberated boys. No longer does the stereotype of girls in aprons slaving over hot stoves and a sinkful of filthy dishes dominate the scenery. The stereotype has gone the way of Tyrannosaurus Rex. In these changing times, even the most rugged football players can be seen cooking or practicing elegant needlepoint. At last, boys are equal to girls in menial tasks.

Dynamic Stability Achieved in Foreign Language

The Foreign Language Program of Stoneham High School is moving toward a period of relative stability after three years of dynamic transformation. All of the programs have undergone complete changes in texts and other materials, so that in all the classes, the use of the language by students is the primary objective. Students are participating in many new culturally related activities, are doing readings in history and literature and are visiting museums, libraries, and other ethnic organizations. Perhaps the most radical innovation in the classes, however, is the attempt to integrate independent study units in the regular instructional programs.

Frederick Bacon, Program Supervisor, Ann Gower

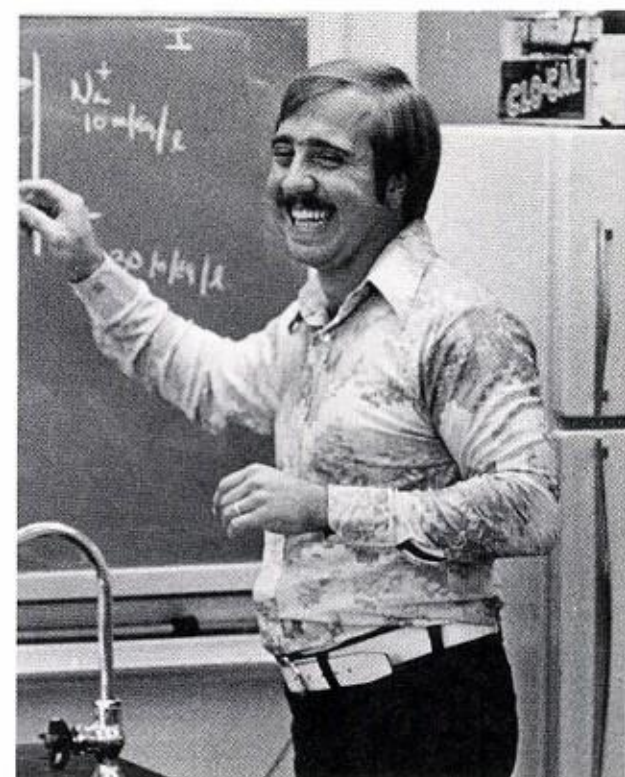

The study of Classics in Stoneham High School begins with learning that agricola means farmer and ends with reading some of the world's great books both in Latin and English. Between these two sets of revelations comes a great deal of frustration, a lot of work, and the sense of achievement and success. When the present senior class entered high school, there were thirty-six people in Latin; this year, there are eighty. All aspects of Latin, mythology, and Graeco-Roman culture are studied, with an emphasis on the literary use of the language. The present senior class has had a strong influence on the curriculum, which no longer is bound by traditional content or methods. Such interesting aspects of Classical culture as early Christian writings and the extraordinary body of literature from the middle ages are studied and enjoyed by all the classes.

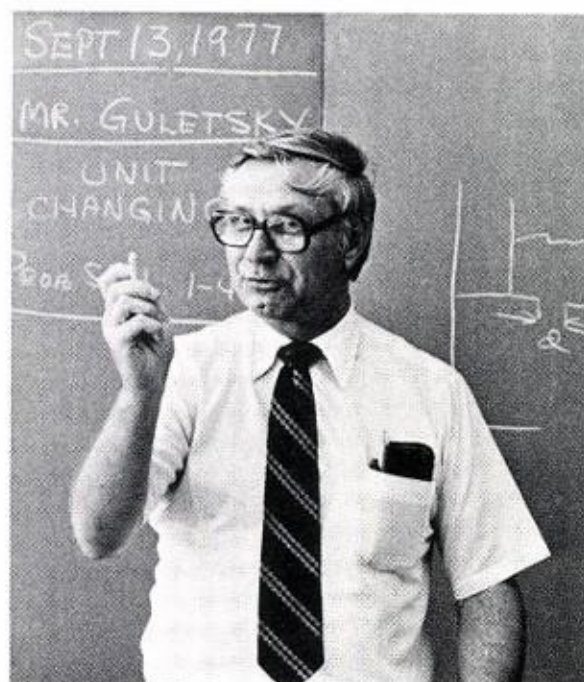

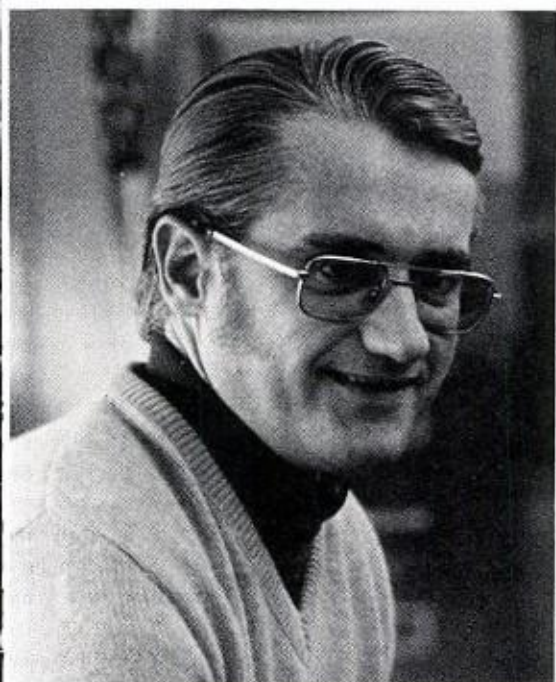

Revived Interest in Classics Results From Innovations

The Science Department this year is experimenting with the combining of the CB and S chemistry and biology courses. The results have proved favorable and the classes will probably be continued in the future. Other ideas currently being considered are the addition of a Biology II course for seniors and mini-course in CPR and Taxidermy. There are also seven Advanced Biology classes this year as compared to 2 last year. The department is doing its best to broaden the scientific horizons of as many students as possible.

New Faces and New Courses Spark Music Department

The Stoneham High Music Department underwent considerable change this year. New and exciting courses relating to music theory and choral groups have been introduced as well as the two new teachers in the department. The performing groups participate in seasonal concerts, festival competition and exchange trips while classes of music theory and instrumental lessons are taught. More and more new faces have been seen this year in the music room and because of their involvement, a high level of group and individual achievement is resulting.

Art Develops A Variety of Skills

Marie Cargill, Program Supervisor and Ted Schwalb

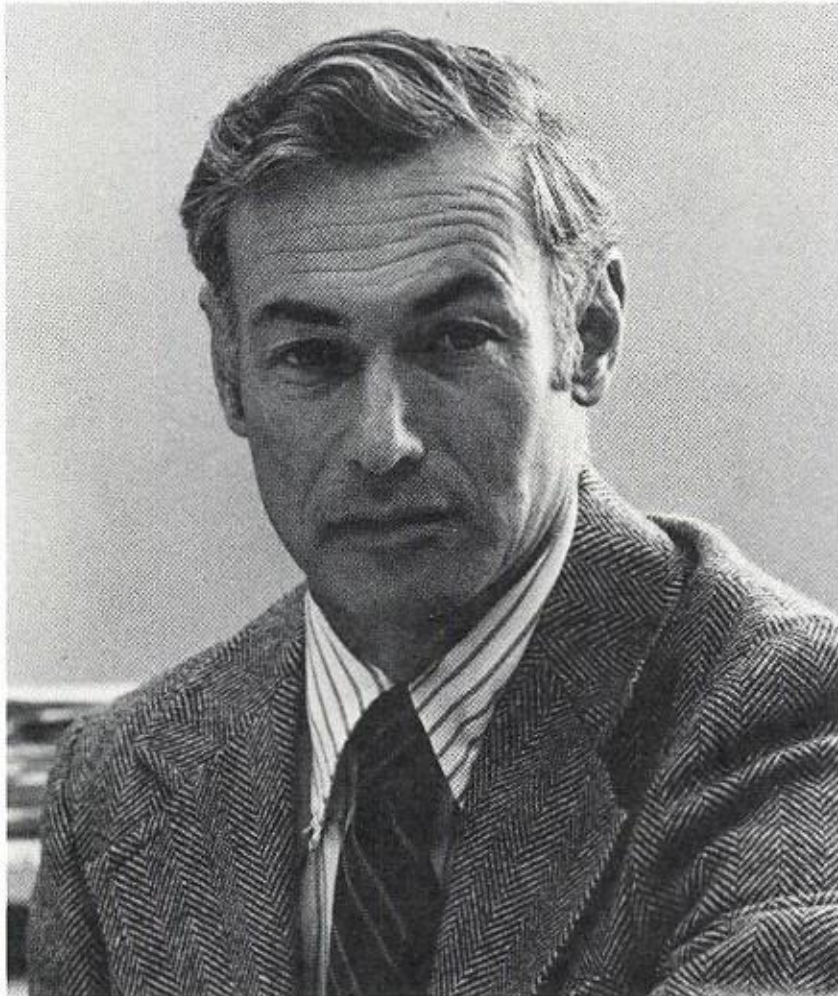

Both arch and statue were erected in a hurry; and whether for lack of time or lack of sculptors, they were made partly from former works of art, with borrowed friezes on the arch and a recut head and arm for the statue. But they also showed a new trend in art. In Constantine's huge marble head, the eyes look into the distance with an unearthly gaze. The new sculptured figures on the arch are rigid and lifeless. Like the people of the day, frozen into castes, the rows of little men gaze with expressionless eyes toward the larger central Figure of the emperor who dominates them all. Gone are the graceful figures showing action and sensuous pleasure. Instead art had become a means of showing the power and glory of the ruler in contrast to the insignificance of ordinary men.

New Atmosphere Fills Guidance Suite

A new atmosphere has developed in the Guidance Department this year. There is an increasing trend towards group counselling, where counsellors work with groups of students in problem solving. A new group called Peer Counselling involves High School students who are being trained to provide guidance for members of the junior high school student body.

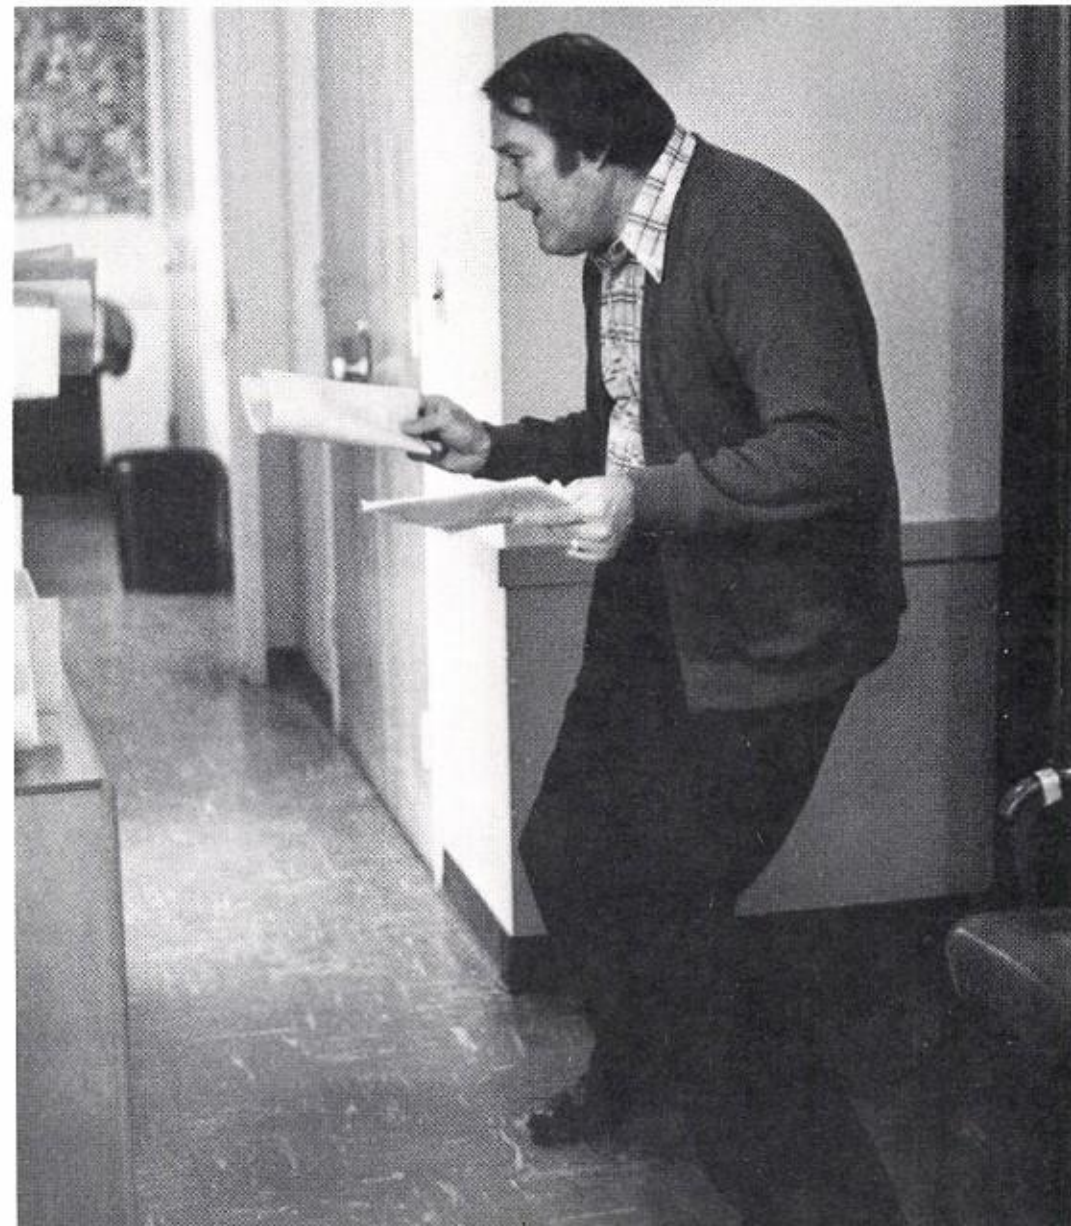

The Career Guidance Department has been making special efforts to find speakers in a variety of areas, with emphasis on coordinating the speakers with the existing academic programs, especially in Social Studies.

The Coed-gym program has become an important part of this year's physical education program. No longer exercises and dull routine, but happy faces and enthusiasm. Each term new units of different sports are introduced, and participation in nearly any sport can be enjoyed. This innovative program also provides excellent opportunity to find new interest and talents, which provide an excellent basis for fitness in the future years.

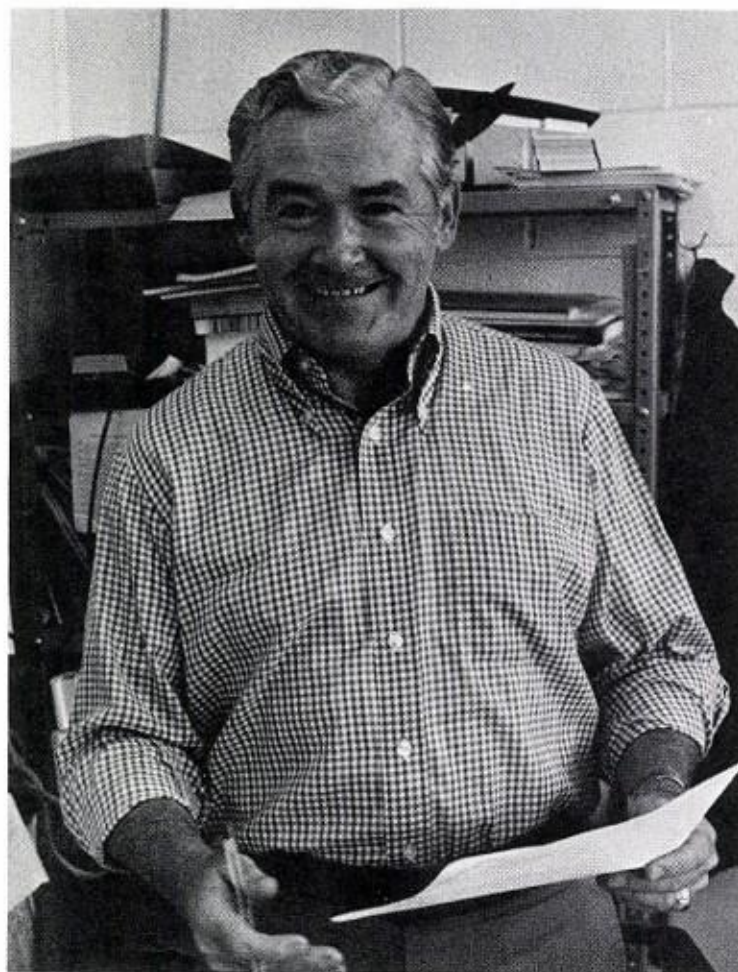

Splicing film, arranging work schedules, finding the right book for the right topic, running to medical emergencies, changing temperatures from freezing to subtropical, producing prize winners—these are the roles of the unsung heroes of Stoneham High school.

Holding the school together in small, often subtle ways from the library to the shipping room, these important people contribute immeasurably to the educational environment.

THE MAXIMUS

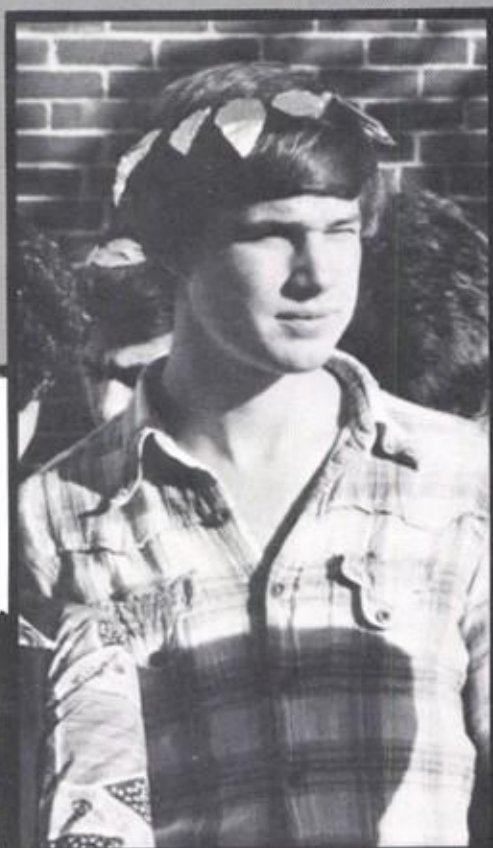

THE CIRCUS MAXIMUS
THREE YEARS OF PERFORMANCES!
IN THE CIRCUS MAXIMUS!

FREE, TO ALL AND EVERYONE!!!
30 — SENIOR FAVORITES — 30

TS

In the year 1977 A.D. there were gathered together all the senior favorites for one grand festival. The name of this glorious event was to be Circus Maximus "The Circus of the Century." As the glorious day of the festival approached the populace waited excitedly for they had been promised a really big show.

Days before huge signs had advertised:

— CIRCUS MAXIMUS —

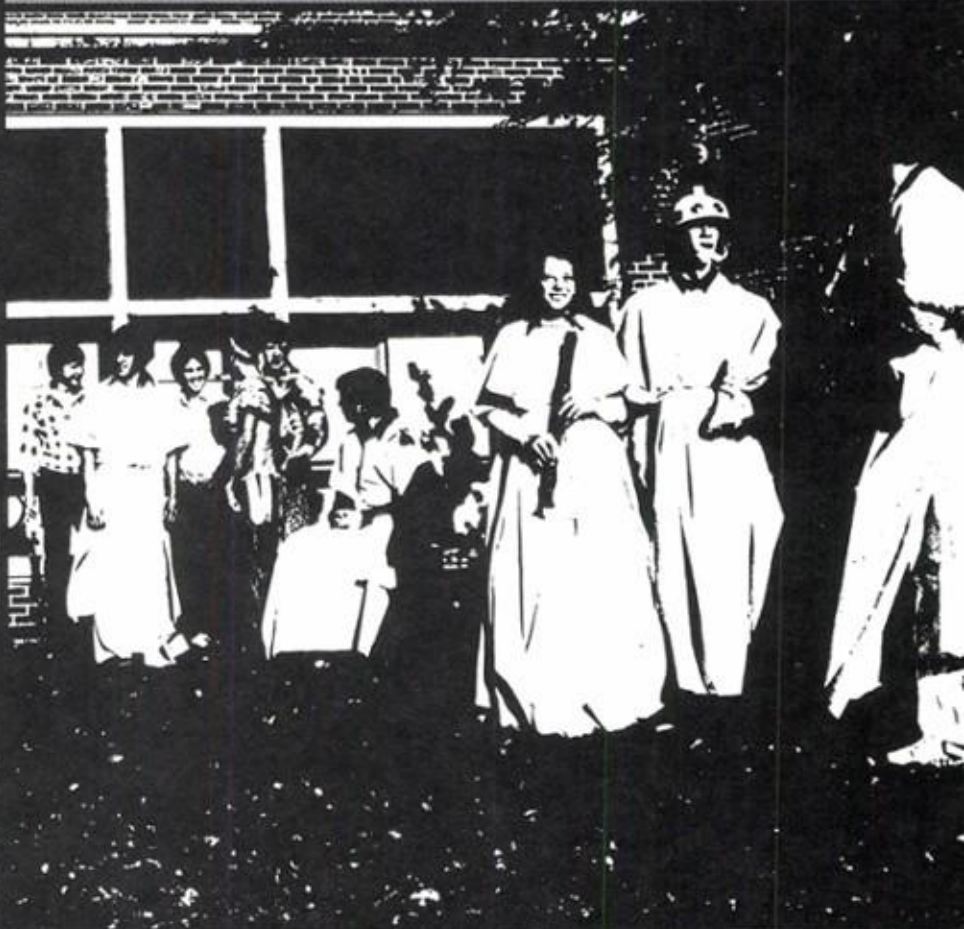

GREAT AND DARING FEATS OF DEXTERITY!

TRUE ARTISTS PEERLESS IN THEIR PERFORMANCES!

BLOOD LUST CATERED TO BY TERRIFYING

TIDDLY-WINK TOURNAMENTS — 7 DAILY!

THREE-LEGGED RACES GUARANTEED TO CREATE THE WILDEST EXCITEMENT!!

SENIORS

Finally the grand, free, glittering festival day was here. Great throngs gathered at the gates of the Circus Maximus. As the trumpets blared the anxious spectators bought cakes, wine, and racing cards from venders. Finally the long awaited event, the most promising and thrilling of all, the infamous three-legged races; people stopped purchasing food and drink and sat in awe at the fantastic performances. The feats were unmatched by any ever seen in the Circus Maximus tradition, tracing back over seven hundred years of its founder Romulus. Finally the races ended; to the surprise of the crowd there were many still alive. They yelled for more blood spill: seemingly their lust was not catered to enough. But alas, the Circus Maximus came to a thrilling and spectacular ending.

People soon forgot about their disappointment and cheered with great pleasure.

After the crowd had dispersed, the circus was empty, only the senior favorites left to sit and reminisce, but pleased with the thought of knowing their Roman fans would never forget their daring and wild performances.

SENIOR PLAYERS DON'T DRINK THE WATER

"Don't Drink the Water" is the exciting, funny, and sometimes passionate story of a caterer from Newark who travels to Europe with his wife and daughter and inadvertently takes pictures of state secrets. The Hollander family's misadventures stem from their incarceration in the American embassy. While there, they encounter a plethora, of wacky characters, including Axel Magee, the temporary ambassador, a zany priest, and a hedonistic sultan, who attempt to aid in the family's escape. The initial efforts fail because of the combination of bungling by Axel and the watchful eye of Krojack, the evil head of the secret police. But in the end all works out well for the Hollanders and Magee.

SPORTS

Booters Most Successful

The Stoneham varsity soccer team's sixth place finish was most misleading. In the competitive Middlesex League their standing at 8-4-6 was good enough for a State Tournament berth and a date with eventual State Champion Needham who went the entire season unscored upon. The Spartans had nothing to be ashamed of in bowing to the Rockets 3-0 in a driving rain storm at Braintree. But being the second Stoneham team to make the Tournament was icing enough to a successful, exciting year.

The season's undoubted highlights were a thrilling 2-1 victory over league champion and Tournament semifinalist Wakefield and also two hard fought ties with state quarter finalist and league runner up Lexington. But success unmistakably was the word and the 1977 Stoneham soccer team left a good feeling with themselves, and all who saw them play during the season.

First Year Spikers Impressive

The first year volleyball team proved to be the surprise squad of the year. They remained undefeated until their final match, a loss to Masconomet. This defeat came only after the team had dominated eight other matches, including a trouncing of last year's state champions.

Captained by Paula Doherty and Marta Siquiera, a Brazilian exchange student, the team constantly displayed the utmost enthusiasm giving them the edge over all of their veteran opponents.

Disappointment and Injuries Plague our Gridders

The 1977 edition of the Stoneham football team was a disappointment. Early success highlighted by victories against Woburn and Wakefield gave no indication of the frustrating five game losing streak that followed. After Winchester knocked the Spartans from the ranks of the undefeated the team seemed to lose its spark (along with Tri-Captain Victor Pizzotti) in consecutive losses to Watertown, Burlington, Melrose and Lexington. During this stretch the offense was a particular problem not to revive until QB Paul Uva took charge in a 27-14 beating of Belmont. Co-Captains Steve White and Bill McLaughlin will lead the 3-5-1 Spartans into the hoped for successful season finale vs Reading.

Three losses in thirteen games usually makes a tournament bound team. Seven ties and three wins doesn't. The 1977 Field Hockey team earned a 3-3-7 record (Fifth in the Middlesex league) yet scored only seven goals all season. An impenetrable defense allowed the team nine shutouts, eight in their last ten games. Unfortunately, six of these blankings ended in 0-0 stalemates.

The Spartan's record was a respectable one and the team was underrated by no one. With many returning letter winners, next year's squad will undoubtedly be one of the league's strongest.

This year, the cross country team had its best season of the past three years. Under the leadership of coach Fillback, the Spartans raced to a record of 4 wins, 5 loses and a fifth place at the Middlesex League Meet.

The squad was spurred on by the superb running of David Cronier, a Middlesex League all star. Following behind David were Capt. Jack Fitzgerald, Tom Harrigan, David Doucette, David Stone and Rich Reagan.

Also this year a girls cross country team was started and they anticipate an excellent seasons with a more experienced squad next year. The pioneers in girls cross country are Kelly Arsenault, Susan Dion, Gail Woods and MaryJane Warren.

ONE LOSS AWAY

Stoneham Hockey 1977-78 can be deemed both success and failure. A success because of the team's record (9-5-4) and third place finish which surprised most league "experts". But, a failure because 1978 marked the third season in a row the Spartan hockey team has stayed home in March. This year a fifth loss to league leader Burlington sealed the Spartans fate.

Led by the league's highest scoring line (McDonough, Sullivan and Powers) the Spartans placed five players in the league all-star game. Rounding out the star contingent was stalwart three year blueliners Jimmy and Tommy O'Grady. Stoneham's unquestionable MVP was junior center Bill McDonough. His overall campaign can only be described as brilliant as he collected a record shattering 52 pts. Bill set the pace for league scorers all year only to be nosed out at the wire for the scoring title. Not to be out done McDonough's sidekick senior wing Bob Powers (a JV player as a junior) became Stoneham's most prolific one season goal scorer with 25 breaking a 13 yr. old record. Overall Spartan hockey was a success with big winners at the JV and Frosh level (not to mention a nucleus of returning regulars) the prospects for March bus rides are improving.

Efforts of Winter Track

Alain Rocher's Stoneham High Winter Track Team finished the season with a fine record of 4 and 5. Highlight of the season was Co-Captain Jack Fitzgerald's breaking of Stoneham High's 600 yard run record with an outstanding time of 1:15.7. Co-Captain Bill Perry also had a remarkable season with the highest jump in the Middlesex League, a fantastic 6'3". Bill similarly had an excellent season in the 45 yard hurdles along with Tim "Gooch" Angelosanto as they finished first and second in nearly every race. Many thanks to the new assistant coach Boo-Boo Graham. The team should be commended for an all around superb effort.

HOOPSTERS SHOW STRONG FINISH

The 1977-78 Stoneham High Basketball entry will forever be haunted by a 6'4" if. If standout junior Jack Belcher, the big man to provide stability up front, had been around all year would a March trip have been possible? Many voice an unequivocal yes. But even without Belcher for one third of the season the Spartans still managed a few big upsets over the course of the season; foremost among them were victories over Wakefield (away) and tourney bound Reading.

The man who shouldered the scoring burden, while doing a vintage "Ernie D" impression, was all star "Mr. Everything" Vin Solazzo. His brilliance reflected in his setting the pace for league scorers all season. Vin finished an awesome 400 point plus campaign (high lighted by the breaking of the Wakefield Field House record with 38 points) with a strong 21 pts. per game average. Other seniors who made key contributions were Tito Perrone, Zayre Rowe, Woody Woodman, and Stud Farren.

In addition to Belcher (who placed tenth among league scorers with a 15 point average) many Sophomores and Juniors, 6 in all, played key roles all year long, a fact which spells a very bright future for Spartan basketball.

Spartans Come up Short on Courts

The girls varsity basketball team opened their season with a win over non-league opponent, Newton South. Unfortunately, the girls found the competition a little more formidable within the league and a number of disappointments were in store for them. The team did, however, earn their first victory three games into the season at the expense of Watertown.

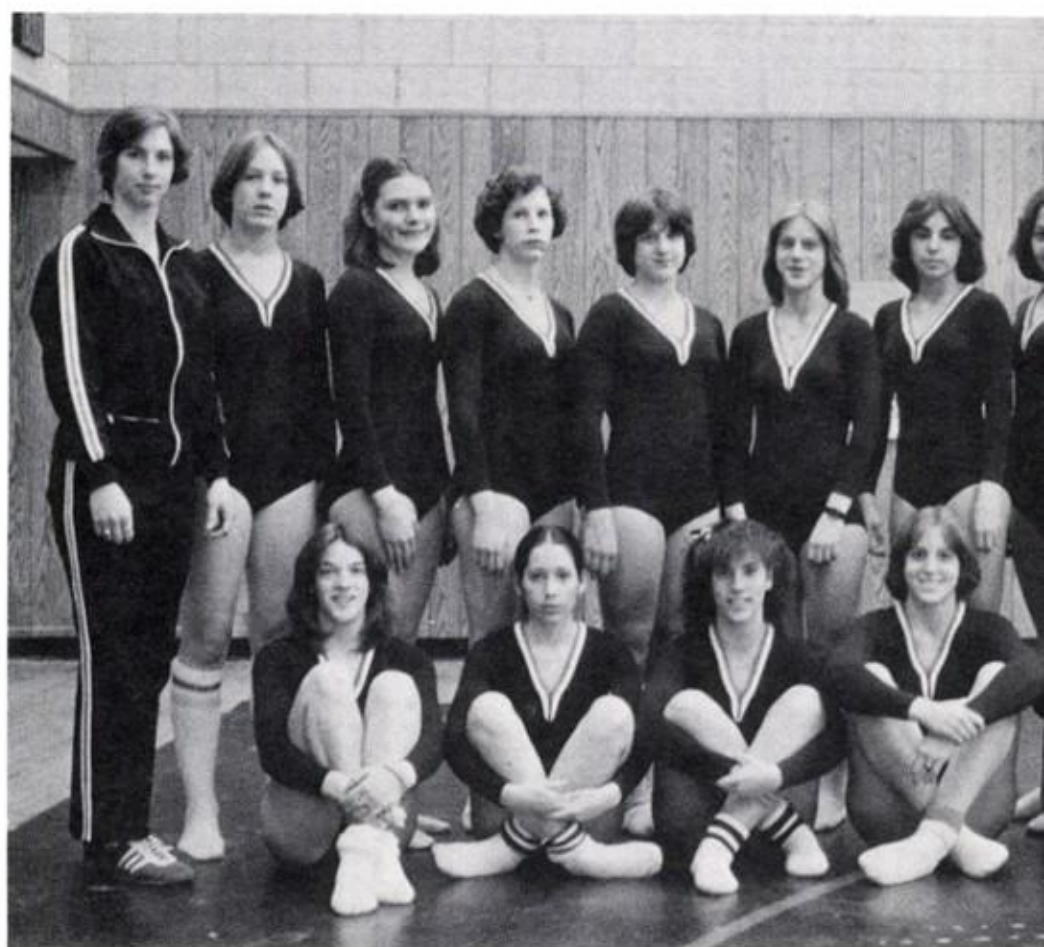

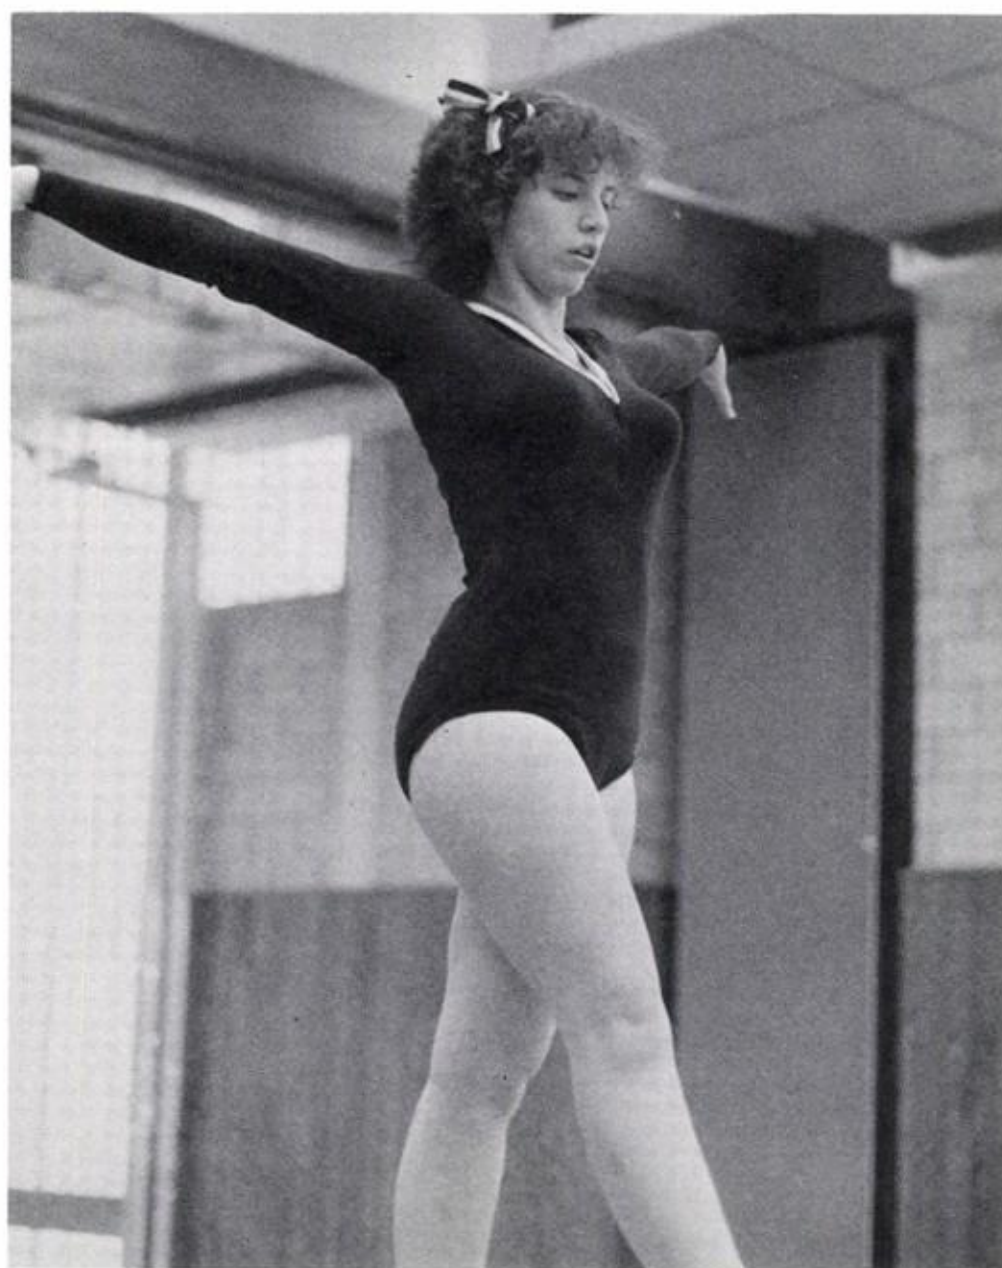

The squads starters include Senior Co-Captains, Paula Doherty and Jeanne DeCosta, and three juniors, Teresa Kwiatkowski, Ann Dillion, Julie Zani. With an abundance of returning talent, next season's potential is awesome.

GYMNASTIC TEAM

Even though Stoneham was not on top they had a very good season. The girls worked hard learning new tricks and improving their old ones. Plenty of new talent come to us this year and they are adding to the strength of the other team members. The top all around scorers were Tracy Marks with 16.00 points and JoAnne O'Grady with 12.00 points. The high individual scores were Penny Griffith with a 6.8 average, and Karen Boudreau with 6.7 average. The teams high achievements are all due to the excellant coaching of Miss Cindy Carbone and Mr. Tom Mayo.

During festivals, huge crowds would converge on Rome's great amphitheater and many circuses to attend a day of games. In the vast Colosseum, up to 50,000 people could watch gladiators fight wild beasts or other gladiators. In the even larger Circus Maximus, some 260,000 gathered to cheer daredevil charioteers as they raced around a perilously tight track. "Such a throng flocked to all these shows," wrote Suetonius, "that many strangers had to lodge in tents pitched . . . along the roads, and the press was often such that many were crushed to death."

Junior Prom Brings Sunshine

Caruso's Diplomat was the scene of the 1977 Junior Prom. It was a cold, blustery March 23 when the radiant couples began arriving to be greeted by the receiving line, consisting of class officers, faculty, and administrators. After a sumptuous dinner the sparkling couples began to dance to the music of "Crystal City". As the night wore on the music softened, the lights dimmed, and the mood became misty and magical. For all present it was an evening of warm memories.

Revelers utilize dance floor under watchful eye of the faculty; Rhonda Veno takes charge; Messrs. Mitchell, Blauvelt, Binda, and Marguard enjoy a rare coke; Sharon Doherty, Cheryl Matheson, and Doreen Gilmartin share some gossip.

Exactly one month after the blizzard forced post ponement the 1978 Carnival Ball with its strong Star Wars theme finally rocketed into reality. The royal Couple of Guy Paladino and Lorene St. Amand presided over a show that personified the lively Hurrah for Hollywood theme.

Mario Cantone, Lee Burr, Paula Walker, and Billy Blauvelt perform an energetic disco dance. A Touch of the Roaring 20's — Jody Stevens and Alan Cromwell dance the Charleston. Paul Uva — a quick man with the mike.

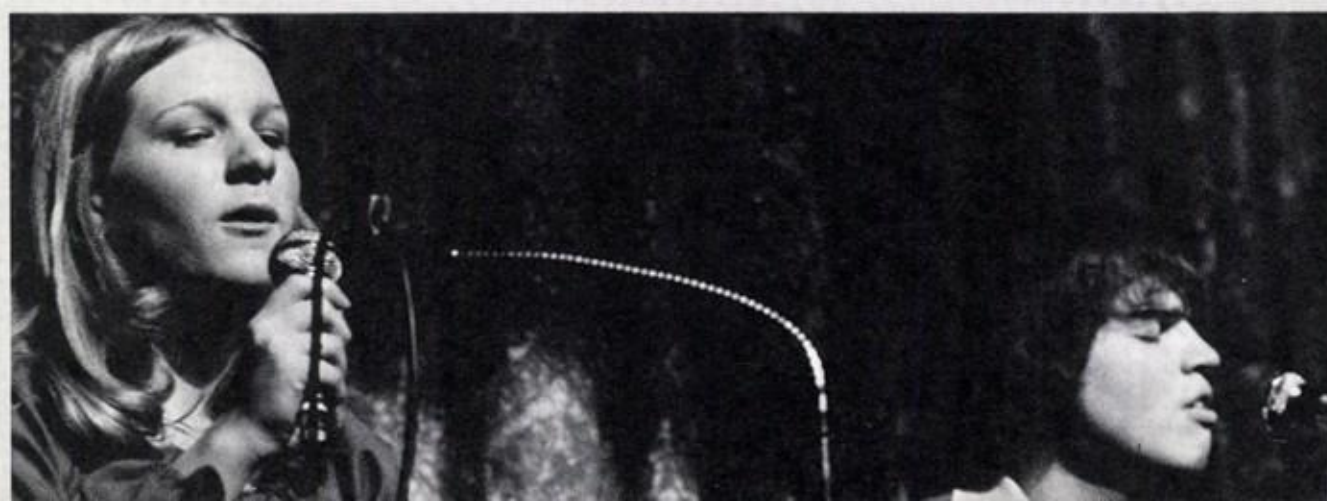

Attendants: Sharon Doherty, Carrie Boretti, Sharon Butler, Ann Barbuto, Cheryl Matheson, Doreen Gilmartin, Helene Cafasso, Jean Velardocchia, Karen Edgerly, Pattye Comfort. The Many Faces of Corbett

Among the highlights of the Carnival Ball was the recreation of the Academy Awards ceremonies, featuring Alan Cromwell as John Wayne and Jimmie Stewart, Bernie Corbett as Ray Charles, Carter Brando, Nicholson, and “Rocky”, Carmine Frongillo as Cheif Running Scared, with two charming presenters — Donna Ponti, Steven Ferretti.

The Jazz Ensemble, directed by Mr. Dregalla, and the Combined Choruses, under the direction of Mr. Abrahams and Ms. Wienski, tied the show together by performing songs made famous in memorable movies.

Ubiquitous accompanist Rosemary St. George here accompanies herself in "Everything".

"Chorus Line" presents Stoneham's version of the Rockettes.

Recapturing the flavor of movies of by-gone days — Laurie Surdum and Mary Maloney as twin Shirley Temples; and Cindy Rockwood on a bale of Kansas hay before taking flight "Over the Rainbow".

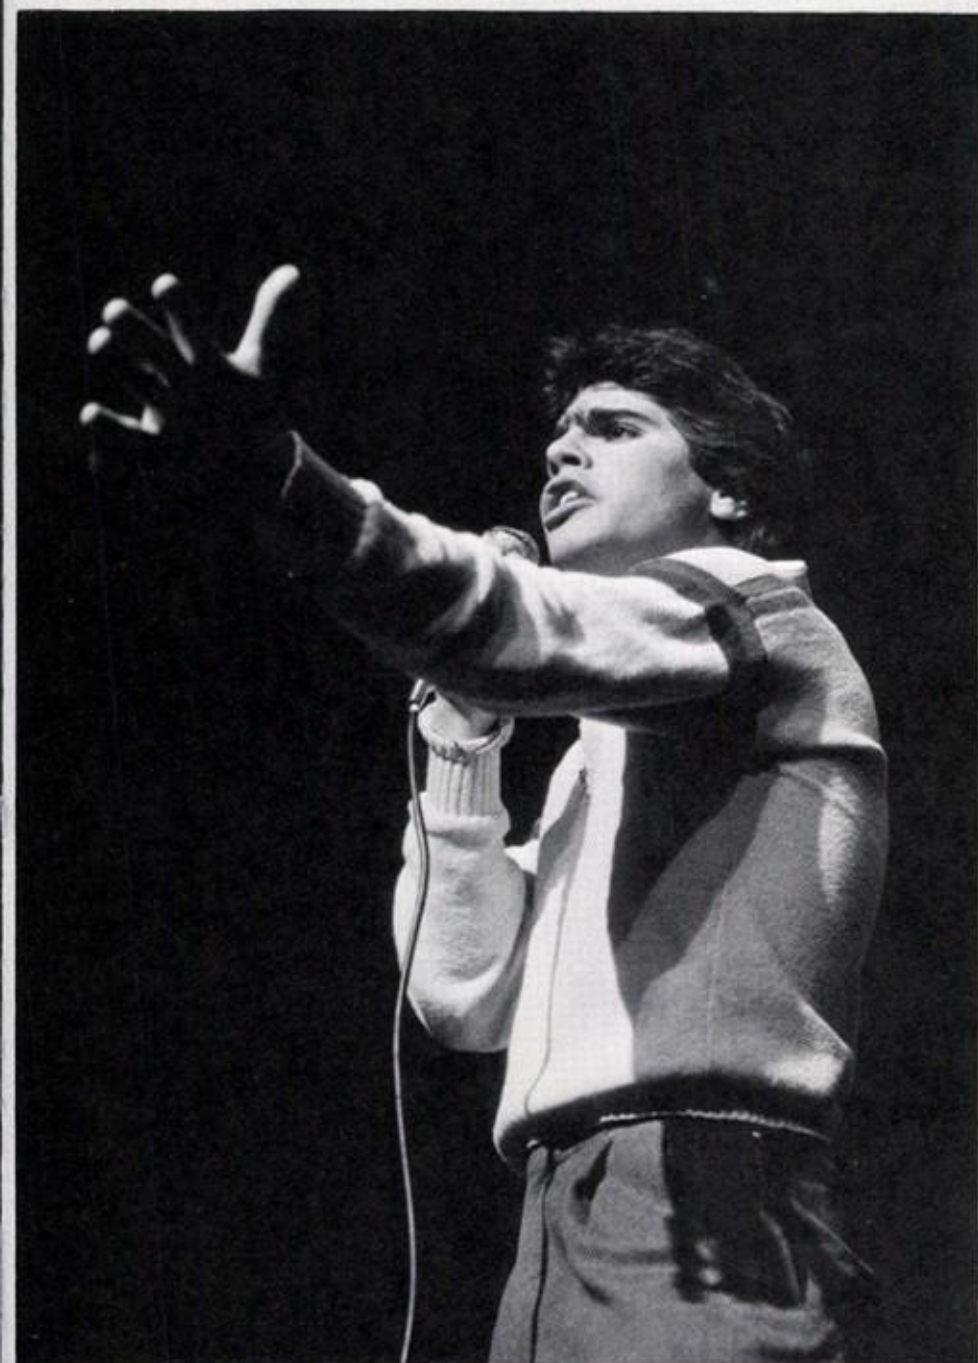

Frank Husser and Cindy Troiano exercise their musical magic with "Desperado".

Celesti Scalisi in a swirling modern dance interpretation of the "Star Wars" theme.

Some of the fine acts to appear in the Carnival Ball were, clockwise from top: Mario Cantone's Monologue; "I'd rather Be Blue" by Nick Turco and friends Lisa McMaster and Jean Turner; "An Evening Recording Session" featuring Question 67, 68.

Mystery, beauty and Intriguing dances are daily occurrences "At the Casbah." Margie Aghassi, and Suebeth Morrissey, along with two mystery men depict this portrayal of Indian life.

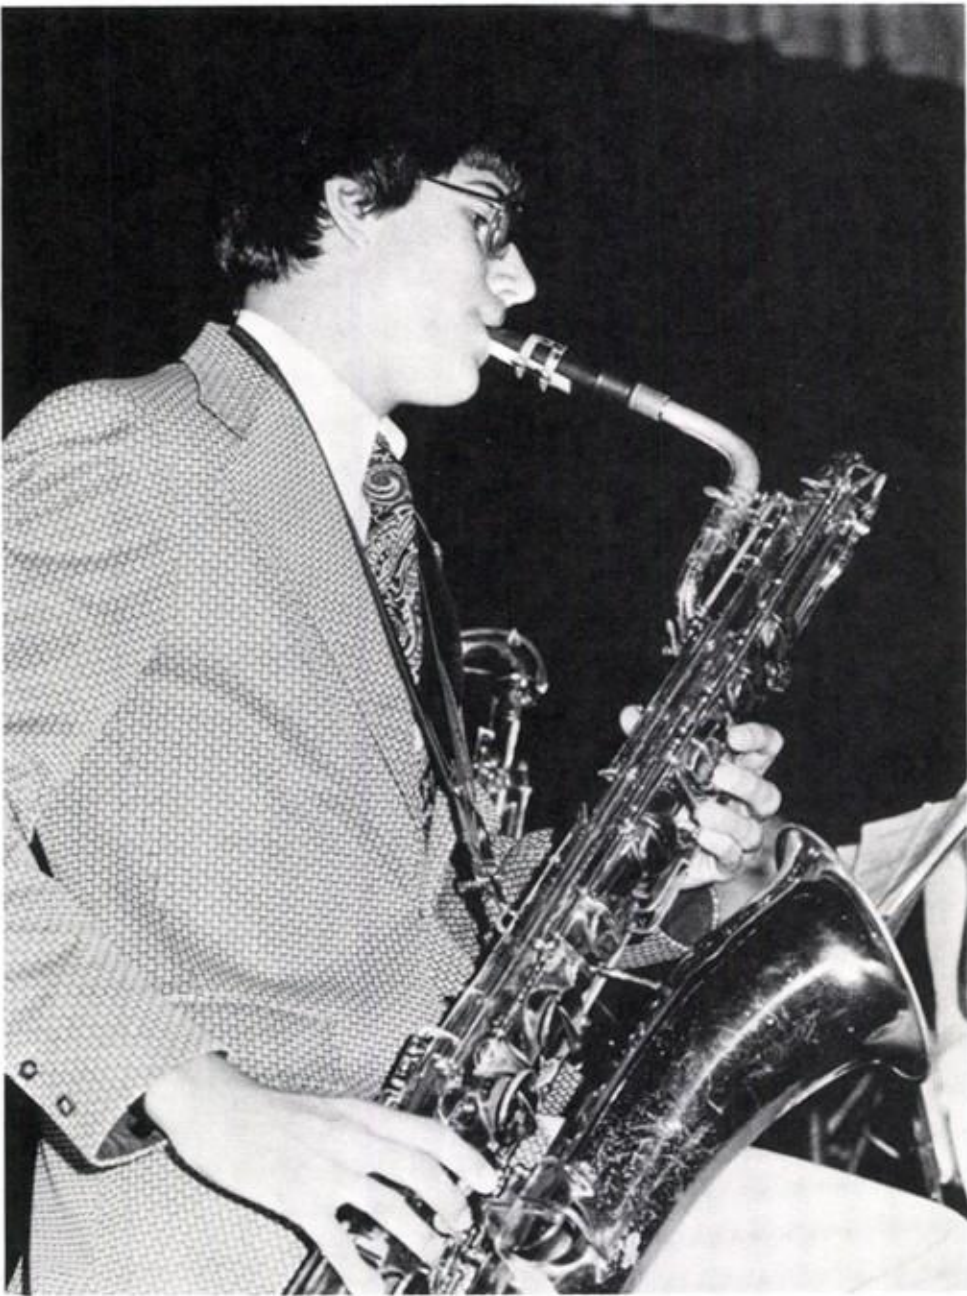

Winter Concert Highlight of Musical Season

Mr. Dregalla directs charges, while to the right, Robert Allen plays trumpet, and below, Bill Barbo solos on the saxophone.

The winter concert proved a tremendous success. Both the band aggregations and the choral groups achieved a high level of excellence, including such highlights as Cindy Rockwood's solo and the stirring presentation of the "Hallelujah Chorus" from Handel's Messiah by the chorus. Ms. Wienski's groups were all warmly received as were both the jazz band and the stage band. A command performance for the faculty was unfortunately snowed out.

Ms. Wienski leads the Girls' Ensemble in Kodaly's "Ave Maria."

The Stoneham High School Chorale Groups have turned in another successful year giving wonderful performances to all those who had the pleasure to view and listen to them. Under the new direction of Ms Wienski, the girls Ensemble, Repertory Chorus and Chamber Singers have worked many long hours to perfect their style. The Chorale Groups have already given the first big performance of the season, namely the Winter Concert. All who viewed the show said that the group has never done better and that all who participated in the show should be commended. With the Winter Concert over the Spartan Chorale is now preparing for the Carnival Ball, in which we are sure they will give a truly stupendous performance.

Drama Club Produces Offspring: Theater Arts Club is Born

Theater Arts, an outgrowth of the drama club, is a new club this year. The club has become very active, and has attended many workshops to learn more about the technical end of putting on a production. The Theater Arts Club is looking forward to their biggest project, the spring production of Guys and Dolls.

Class Officers Provide Leadership For Busy Year

The Senior Class officers enjoyed a productive and profitable year. The leadership they provided for their fellowclassmates was exemplary. Faced with a large deficit as a result of the loss of the senior snackbar, the officers exhibited much ingenuity and determination by providing successful fund raising projects such as candy, jewelry, and T-shirt sales. Future projects include a "Gong Show," which will be combined effort of the Junior and Senior officers.

Science and Math Spur Extra-curricular Interest

Elaine Johnson, Perry Hamlyn, Ms. Layne, Scott Isabelle, Nancy DeFeo, Robert Fields

The Mathematics Team and Science Club were two of the most active academic clubs of the year. Each month the Math Team traveled to various towns to compete with nine other teams. The Science Club's year was highlighted with several significant guest speakers. These two clubs provided a commendable service to college-bound seniors who plan to major in these fields.

Serious Writers Sow "Seeds"

Patricia Norelli, Marilyn Zibell Robert Bourque, Elena McCarthy, Cheryl Waite

If This Can Be . . .
 When the world is free from pain
 if, indeed, it will ever be;
 And when there is no cause for blame if, indeed, this ever will be;
 When the people are free from guilt
 free from hate free from sin
 if, perhaps, this will ever be;
 And when together we live in peace
 live with love
 live in grace
 If again this ever will be;
 When our race is finally evolved
 If, of course, this can be;
 And when our problems are fully resolved
 If you believe this ever will be;
 When all this is accomplished
 And when all diversities are one;
 the flowers will bloom
 the rivers will flow
 the winds will soar
 And a soul's expectancy will be forever.

Who Knows What Goes on Behind Blue Doors?

Behind Blue Doors has seen a lot of growth in this, its second year, at Stoneham High. Editors Jane Alessandrini and Jane Donnelly, along with advisor Ms. Kathryn Chase, have worked to bring some degree of professionalism to the publication. The staff, made up largely of inexperienced reporters, has tried to provide the school with a newspaper that is informative, interesting and entertaining.

The main objective of Behind Blue Doors is to create an organ of expression for the student body. The newspaper has struggled all year to get response from the school population about current happenings and interests.

Although not always successful in attaining the goal of stimulating interest in our school, and things that affect it, Behind Blue Doors promises to continue to try to answer the question, "What goes on Behind Blue Doors?"

This year's drama club members appear busier and more lively than they have in previous years. This is due mainly to the ambition of Mary Jane Grubb and Kattie Wallace, the presidents of the club. The smash success of the year thus far has been the Senior Play "Don't Drink the Water". The members took occasional time off from the grueling work of the play production for amusement and relaxation. They engaged themselves in such activities as a Halloween Costume Party, a Drama Festival and a Drama Workshop. The Drama Club is currently starting work on a musical play, "Guys and Dolls" which will appear in the Spring. Members are confident that this next major production will receive as much praise as "Don't Drink the Water"

Recreation Clubs Popular

During Long Cold Winter

Fencing Club: John Brown, Keith Fung, Robert Murphy, Miss Wheeler, Patty Burry, Robert Ciano.
Dance Club: Patti Dewitt, Mary Alyce Geist, Kathy Kazanjian, Nancy Durant and Beth Sandler.

Fencing — Dancing — Gym Leaders

During the long winter months one must rely on indoor recreation to keep in shape. Such recreation is supplied by the Fencing, Dancing and Gym Leaders Clubs. The distinguished and noble Fencing Club is hard at work thrusting and lunging their way towards an Olympic competition. They beam in anticipation of the fame they are sure to attain, if they continue to practice as seriously as they now do. More actively inclined students join in the Dance Club's swing. International dance is a popular theme among members this year and they have worked hard to create a dance in which the goose step is used. Those not wishing to lunge or swing join in the antics of the Gym Leaders Club. These athletic students assist the physical education teachers in containing and helping students as they go about the fun and games of their gym classes. The interest in these clubs is skyrocketing and you can be assured that new faces will join the veterans in years to come at Stoneham High.

Gym Leaders

Suzanne Parker, Mr. Tavanese, Debbie Doherty, Kathy Caswell, Marie Meroski, Lorelei Cunha, Jodie Stevens, Steven Shannon, Mike Farren, Mark Rowe, Andy Parker.

Secretaries, Nurses Look to the Future

Denise Simpson — President, Ann Marie McDermott — Vice President, Maria Touet

Ann Dean — President, Cindy Harvey — Treasurer Darlene Jenkins — Secretary

Besides training girls for future employment, the Future Nurses and Future Secretaries have been very busy selling candy, holding raffles, and selling tickets. The proceeds from all of these business ventures will go into scholarships funds and will be awarded to deserving girls. These clubs do provide a good starting point for girls interested in these careers.

Clubs Serve School, Community

Community Service: Carmine Frongillo, Mike Skerry, Jody Stevens, Cathy Hegarty

Tutors: 1st Row: Lorelei Cunha, Bonnie Oram, Ellen Dawson, Lisa Nazarian. 2nd Row: Ms. Broderick, Guy Paladino, Marilyn Dotolo, Margaret DiFonzo, Anne Marie McDermott, Sam Valenti, Ms. Norelli

Jim Highet, Ron Rojack, Tom Crilly, Jody Stevens.

This year, as in the past, the members of the Community Service Club and the Tutoring Corps have volunteered their time to work and develop relationships with people in the town. Community Service has worked with handicapped children and with the elderly. The Tutoring Corps has helped many students in the areas of their academic weaknesses. With such activities these students have made positive contributions not only to the school community but to the town as a whole.

Ethnic Interests Revive

Italian Club: Amy Natalie, Mr. Anastasi, Celeste Scalisi, Marilyn Dotolo, Barbara Luther, Robin Laird, Diane Paonessa — Treasurer, Brian Murphy, Haley Wiseman — Secretary, Larry Flammia, Vicky Pelligrino — President, LuAnne Deal, Cathy D'Annolfo — Vice President, Ann Corino, Paul Gianelli, Frank Saitta, Steve Scarpa, Joe Galente

Nick Turco — President, Suzanne Tower — Vice President, Linda D'Ambrosio — Secretary, Denise d'Entremont — Treasurer, Donna Martis — Secretary Advisor, Mark Mulligan — President Advisor, Felicia Smith — Vice President, Jody Stevens — Treasurer.

A new club that has come about this year is the Spanish Club. Ms. Meyer, also a new addition to S.H.S., started the club in September and it has been growing steadily ever since. The club has planned trips to New York in March, and a trip to The Boston Museum of Fine Arts to view impressive collections of Spanish Art. Thus far the club has been very successful, and if they continue with the same enthusiasm we are sure they will be just as productive in the years to come.

Interact Lends a Helping Hand

Seated: Barbara Petricone, Patricia McClusky, Bill Barbo, Arlene Goode, Connie Vratton, Rebecca Holt, Standing: Scott Isabelle, Steve Shannon, Mr. Conroy

Interact, which is a branch of the Rotary Club, is an organization in which the members try to enrich the lives of various members of the community. Interact members are required to attend some Rotary Club meetings during the year to get a better understanding of what is needed in the town.

In years past the Stoneham Chapter of Interact has done much to help the community. They have assisted in the building of the float for Stoneham's 250th Anniversary. Also they have sponsored a mini-ambassador from Israel.

This year's club president, Bill Barbo, and advisor Mr. Conroy, have been very instrumental in setting up other chapters of Interact in New Hampshire and Massachusetts. The club has also helped in arranging a Christmas party for the elderly at Central School and delivered food baskets to underprivileged families during the Holiday Season.

DECA: Salesmen of the Future

Ton Frangiosa, President; Todd Ballard, Vice-President; Kim Greenleaf, Treasurer; Ann Barbuto, Secretary; Jean Hurley, Chairperson; Nancy Russell, Chairperson; Nancy Clabby, Secretary Treasurer; Diana Sudano, Secretary Treasurer.

The Stoneham DECA chapter is once again preparing for the annual state competition that will begin February 10. The Stoneham Chapter has done very well in the past and has won DECA Chapter of the year three years running. In preparation for competition DECA members went to a conference in Boston where they attended workshops that helped them gain experience in marketing, setting up displays, and dealing with the consumer.

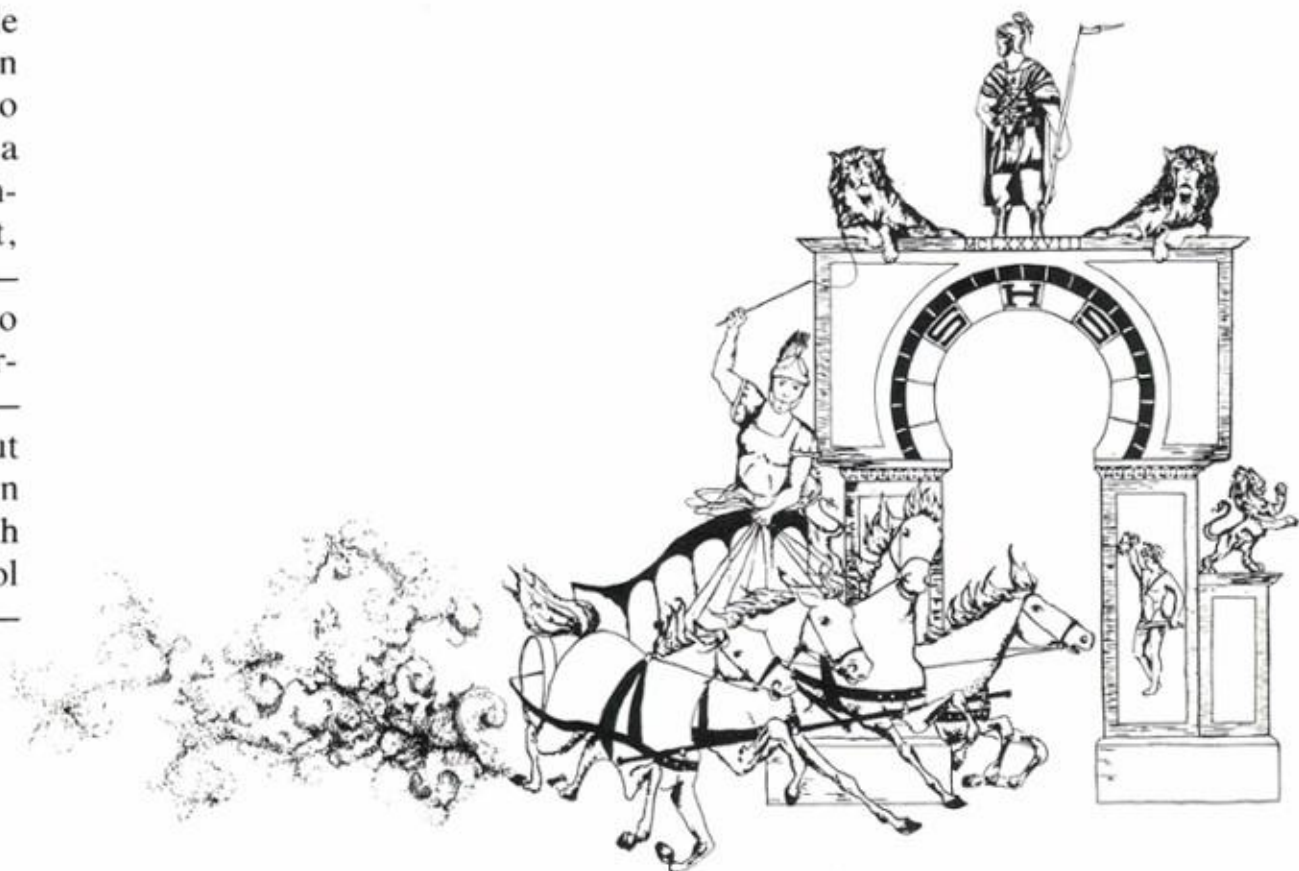

Santa Claus's present to DECA this year was the visitation of a throng of imposters who caroled their way into the DECA group picture. Test your wits and see if you can pick out the people who don't belong.

Reflection of a School?

Look who showed up for the picture! Some very unfamiliar faces, but Karen Mortensen, copy editor, and Mary Appleyard, her assistant, helped, as did Mark Mulligan, business editor.

At Left: Fran Stuart, assistant activities editor, and Chris Lewis check some new photographs. The cover design was the joint effort of Chris and Nancy Smith, art editors.

The city hummed with trade; Pliny the Younger commented that "in Rome the Merchandise of the whole world could be had all together." Indoors and in the streets a variety of tradesmen did business: barbers at one stand, grocers at the next, money changers, furniture merchants, book dealers. Boys sold sausages, and sooty, smoking shops offered cooked food ready to take out. Oil-used for lamps, for cooking and in soap-was Rome's single most important commodity, so much so that by 300 A.D. the city had 2,300 dealers in this product alone.

All good things must come to an end. But with the end dawns a new beginning. From the Senior Class Officers to all our fellow classmates a sincere wish for future success in all endeavors of the CLASS OF 1978.

Non est ad astra mollis e terris via. There is no easy way from the earth to the stars.

— Seneca —

Good Luck to the Class of 78 from the Class of 79.

You graduate under a lucky star that gives you the magnetism to attract love, money, and an exciting life. You have the stamina to withstand difficulties and the individuality to obey only those rules that make sense. Your purpose is to use your resources to help others achieve a happier life, thereby achieving happiness yourself. In seeking nothing for your separate self, you'll go free.
